FRENCH LINES BROKEN IN 9-MILE BATTLE

London, Feb. 23.—The Germans have broken the French lines north of Verdun and captured 3,000 French prisoners, winning the most important success the western front has seen for months on either side, according to an official report from Berlin today.

The Paris official bulletin admits the German success, saying that the battle raged over a front nine miles long.

The German statement says the French line was broken over a front of about two miles.

Yesterday the Germans had shattered half a mile of French line in this same vicinity.

The German successes today bring them dangerously near the great French fortress of Verdun. The fort-

SUICIDE IN HOME OF DOCTOR BY SHOOTING

Florence Towle, a sixteen-year-old State ward, shot and killed herself shortly after noon today in the home of Dr. Coval H. Liverpool at No. 315 Highland avenue, West Somerville, where she was employed.

Dr. Liverpool and his wife were at dinner when they heard the sound of the shot. Dr. Liverpool ran up the stairs to the attic room where the girl slept, and found her dead on the floor.

She had shot herself with the doctor's 38 calibre revolver. The bullet penetrated her heart.

Dr. Liverpool said he knew nothing of the girl's antecedents, that he secured her through the State Board of Charity and that she had never made any threat to end her life.

"I believe she was mentally unsound," he said.

Medical Examiner Charles F. McCaffrey viewed the body. The girl had been employed by Dr. Liverpool for several months.

Spanopulous accosted Miss Alice Danton of Dover street and Mrs. Lillian Bell of Dudley street while they were on their way to church. William F. Sargent, Mrs. Bell's brother, took Spanopulous to a police station.

LINKS BRANDEIS WITH SCHEMES OF HARRIMAN

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 23.—New and serious charges against the character and professional conduct of Louis D. Brandeis were laid before the Senate subcommittee investigating his fitness as a Supreme Court judge today by Austen G. Fox, attorney for the opposition to his appointment.

Among the new charges is one that Mr. Brandeis manipulated the deal on behalf of the late E. H. Harriman, which gave the latter control of the Illinois Central Railroad.

It was also charged that Mr. Brandeis was guilty of unethical methods in his connection with the Gillette Safety Razor case. Further accusations were brought against Mr. Brandeis for his practices in the Equitable Life Insurance case.

Fox furnished the Brandeis subcommittee with a long list of witnesses to substantiate his charges.

Summarizing what he told the committee he could prove in the Illinois Central case, Fox declared that in November, 1907, E. H. Harriman began arranging plans to dominate the annual stockholders' meeting for the purpose of driving Stuyvesant Fish from the presidency of the road. Harriman, said Fox, employed the law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell of New York to take charge of the case for stockholders' proxies.

"Waddill Catchings was sent to Boston by Sullivan & Cromwell to employ Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to canvass Illinois Central stockholders in Boston," said Fox, "and to obtain their proxies for Mr. Harriman against Fish.

"Mr. Catchings spent practically the whole day with him in regard to this (Mr. Brandeis) acting for Mr. Harriman. Thereafter Mr. Brandeis' firm acted for Mr. Harriman and widely sought to obtain proxies in Mr. Harriman's behalf. A number of letters were sent out by Brandeis, Dunbar Nutter soliciting proxies in Mr. Harriman's behalf. Subsequently Mr. Harriman succeeded in turning out Mr. Fish.

Signals Set, Says Road

New York, Feb. 23.—Officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad today issued the following memorandum of "latest news" as to yesterday's wreck without comment:

"All local trains today running on time.

"All through trains except two on time—these two being ten to twenty minutes late.

"All four tracks open.

"Very foggy between New York and New Haven.

"C. H. Morrison, signal engineer, and G. W. Chapple, signal foreman, report the signals (the most modern) after the wreck yesterday to have been properly set to prevent the accident. Mr. Chapple was on train No. 5, which crashed into No. 79, and immediately made an investigation to that effect, and was later joined by Mr. Morrison.

"Chief Inspector Belknap and Inspector Howard of the Interstate Commerce Commission and Commissioner Elwell and others of the Public Utilities Commission of Connecticut, together with the operating and mechanical officers of the New Haven, are now making an investigation as to the cause of the accident.

"The rear end car of train No. 79, which No. 5, in charge of Engineer Curtis, ran into, was one of the very latest and most modern steel cars.

"Investigation shows that the brakes on train No. 5 were in proper working order.

"Engineer Curtis took charge of the train when it was made up at New Haven and had run ten miles. The grade was slightly descending, but not more than one-half of one per cent.

"Flagman Tourtellotte of train No. 79 had gone back 700 feet from his train to warn No. 5 and was evidently killed as he was stopping to place torpedoes on the track.

"Engineer Curtis had been an engineer on the road seven years, with a very fine record. He was a clean-living, upright man. Fireman McGinnis of train No. 5, Engineer Curtis' assistant, had just passed his examination to be an engineer was shortly to be promoted. He also was a good man in every particular.

"Addition to dead: Harry Schappa, No. 102 James street, New Haven, died at New Haven Hospital. He was a clerk employed in Mr. Dwyer's department of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company."

SECRET INQUIRY ON WRECK BY CORONER

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 23.—According to the latest plans, the public probe into the deaths of ten persons killed in the Milford wreck on the New Haven Railroad yesterday will open in this city tomorrow morning, and will be held probably at the Taft Hotel, with Commissioner C. C. Elwell and Chief Engineer John Trumbull representing the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission and sitting jointly with Chief Inspector H. W. Belnap and his assistant inspectors, Howard, Ellis and Hall, of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

It was announced today on the authority of a railroad official that positive orders were issued today by the New Haven road that none but all steel passenger coaches be used hereafter in making up trains on the New York division of the road.

One of the federal inspectors was present with Mr. Elwell and Mr. Trumbull at the railroad company's preliminary inquiry to fix the responsibility, and both Mr. Elwell and Mr. Trumbull have been busy today familiarizing themselves with the detailed facts, especially concerning the operation of the supposedly perfect block signals on the Shore Line division and the matter of despatching trains out of New Haven following express trains.

Coroner Mix of New Haven County worked behind closed doors all day on his inquest. Though he refused to talk about his progress it was noted he devoted much time to the engineer and fireman of the rammed express, and insisted on the best obtainable blue print plans of the signals near Indian River, where the wreck occurred.

The New Haven road issued an official statement giving personal data concerning the killed employes, but saying nothing about the point as to whether or not the dead engineer, W. S. Curtiss of Stamford, ran his train past the signals. Inspection immediately following the wreck by road officials disclosed that they were set for danger.

Word came from Milford this afternoon that the unidentified trainman at first believed to be Fireman Werner had been positively identified as Fireman Harry Sweeney of Stamford, who was riding on the locomotive which exploded and was scalded to death.

After providing earlier in the day,

for a conference, Coroner Mix refused to talk with the newspapermen who gathered in his office at the promised hour, where he was holding his star chamber hearing in regard to numerous questions bearing on various phases of the inquiry he made the same comment: "Nothing to say."

Considerable time was spent by the coroner examining engineer John J. Kennedy of the rammed No. 79, and when he was excused Fire Brennan, Edward Merriamee, and O. L. Tourtellotte, flagman of the Connecticut River train, were all called in the wreck.

On the face of the reports received and statements given out by the New Haven road it seems probable that the wreck was caused by negligence, as it appears that the block signal system was working properly, and that two signals were set against the approach of the second train.

The makeup of the trains in yesterday's wreck, given out by the New Haven road, indicates that train No. 5 was composed entirely of old wooden coaches, there being five on the train. The coaches of No. 79 were three of steel and three of steel underframe.

HEARS ENGINEER.

Coroner Mix had as the first witnesses Engineer John J. Kennedy and Fireman Charles Courtz, who were on the electric locomotive which was hauling train No. 79.

Engineer John Trumbull of the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission was the only outsider present except a stenographer. Blue prints furnished by the New Haven road showed the trackage and the location of the Catenary electric system poles at the scene of the wreck. Only blue prints showing more particularly the location of the signals were telephoned for by Engineer Trumbull and were furnished by the railroad.

Other witnesses expected to be examined are Conductor W. B. Brandt of Elm street, Stamford, Ct.; Baggageman S. J. Dunlap, Ebell Portchester, N. Y.; Head Brakeman F. C. Short, Bridgeport, Ct.; Rear Brakeman W. J. Rockwell, Portchester, N. Y., and Ticket Collector J. P. Connell, Stamford, Ct., all of the crew of train No. 5, and Conductor Evelyn T. Bray, Springfield, Mass., and Baggage Master John E. Lynch, Springfield, Mass., of train No. 79.

It is understood that the inquiry developed that the block stations at the scene of the wreck are over a mile apart and that in both the electric and steam locomotives were yellow and dark electric bulbs indicating to the engineers their location with reference to the blocks.

OTHER INQUIRIES.

At the railroad company's investigation Commissioner C. C. Elwell, who in his former capacity of chief engineer and inspector of the Utilities Commission has handled several other New Haven wrecks, sat with the New Haven officials, who included General Manager C. L. Pardo, General Superintendent J. A. Droege, New York Division Superintendent W. H. Foster and a number of minor officials.

J. S. Hawley, an inspector for the Interstate Commerce Commission and Chief Engineer John Trumbull of the State Commission, were in the room while the company conducted the hearing, "while the facts were fresh in mind," as one of the officials explained.

At the Bridgeport Hospital today it was said that all the wreck victims were recovering except J. T. Hackett, chief rate clerk of the New Haven passenger station, who was operated on for injuries to the head, and whose condition continues serious, and Miss Minnie C. Schwartz, 22, of No. 107 Nicoll street, New Haven, who was operated on for serious burns about the head and shoulders. She was traveling with Miss Susie B. Hyland, of New Haven, instantly killed at Milford, and employed with Miss Hyland as a stenographer for the New Haven road.

At the Milford morgue were the bodies of Engineer Curtis and the recently identified body of Fireman Harry Sweeney.

Another was identified from the effects found on his person as Mardoris Der Hovanessian, an Armenian diamond merchant. Reference was found in his pocket to a pearl shipment to the order of Albert Armen, No. 1622 Utah street, Baltimore. There was also a check of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston for $29 in his pocket payable to the order of Montsigh Shahiman and signed by the Reformed Society. He also carried a small amount of money and bills.

At St. Raphael's Hospital, the condition of Frank McNamara of Ansonia was very serious. His left lung was punctured and he was suffering from a shock.

At the same hospital it was given out that Miss Margaret Penton, 23, of Fordham, N. Y., a New Haven Road stenographer, would probably recover from an operation which necessitated thirty stiches in a long wound across the hip.

William Neenan of New Haven, employed in the accounting department of the New Haven Road, will probably recover from spinal injuries and a fracture of the scapula and A. J. Rainaud of Meriden, vice president of the H. E. Rainaud Art Glass Company, will recover from injuries to the spine and scalp and a bad cut on the wrist.

Preliminary investigations established the fact that a local accommodation train, known as No. 5, was running at forty-mile speed eleven minutes late and making up lost time. Three minutes ahead of it, on the same track, the outside westbound, headed in the same direction, the Connecticut River Special was stalled just beyond the curve to the west of Woodmont.

A short distance to the rear of the stalled special was the "home" block signal, set at "stop." At the eastern end of this block another block signal was set at caution. Moreover a flagman had been sent back from the special.

For some reason still unexplained the engineer of No. 5, the local maintained his forty-mile speed through the first "caution" over the mangled body of the train flagman, and through the "stop" signal into the rear of the special.

Then to add to the horror of the crash, just as these two passenger trains scattered their dead and injured victims and their wreckage over the four tracks of the right of way, a freight train, also running west, in the same direction as the two passenger trains, on the inside westbound track, was side-swiped by the wreck of the passenger train and its derailed cars were thrown into the vortex of death.

LIMITED ESCAPES.

Almost as inexplicable as the disregard of the three signals set against the local was the escape of the Bay State Limited, running east. With no signals to warn it, the flyer, with brakes shrieking, ground to a stop but fifteen feet short of the wreckage that was strewn over its track. A delay of a second by the engineer of the limited in applying the brakes would have piled the limited, with its load of passengers, into the wreck, too.

BOTH TRAINS LATE.

The scene of the wreck is on the tangent from the broad curve west of Woodmont, and well into the straight track of the tangent so that, according to Coroner Mix, it seems as if the engineer of the local, even without the warnings, would have been able to see the stalled express in time to have stopped.

The time on which the two passenger trains were running was established by the agent of the Woodmont depot. At this station the express went through at 11:19, about thirty minutes late, and the local followed it, running about eleven minutes late, at 11:32. Beyond Woodmont commences the long curve, beyond which the express became stalled with a broken coupling hose.

While efforts were being made to repair this hose, a flagman was sent back up the line. This was Tourtellotte. He had made about 700 feet or more and was still running when the local thundered along, grinding him under its wheels.

Then with a terrific crash the engine of the local tore through the rear Pullman of the express. The engine reared on end, still ploughing through the passenger-filled coach. The locking, plung-

Scene and Victims in Engine Crew of the Disastrous New Haven Railroad Collision Near Milford

THRILLING SCENES OF RESCUE AT BIG WRECK

ing tangle reared and fell toward the iron track. Into it came the cars of the freight train, adding momentum to the twisted mass.

Passenger cars were dragged, splintered, overturned and smashed before the freight could be stopped. The boiler of the engine of the local suddenly exploded, wrenching clear of the mass, hurtling over the freight cars, and crashing across the eastbound tracks just as the fast state Limited, its brakes spouting fire, came to a sudden stop.

Then over the tearing and splintering of wood and the hiss of steam came the agonizing shrieks of the injured. The passengers in the wooden cars of the local suffered most. Most of the dead and injured passengers were in this local. Practically every person was injured in some way, many of them suffering from broken jaws received by being hurled from their seats into the backs of the seats ahead.

During these first few moments of wild confusion word was sent from Woodmont, over the road telegraph, of the accident and help summoned from New Haven and Bridgeport.

Passengers and crew of the fine State Limited, together with the uninjured passengers of the express and the crews of the express and the freight, tore into the wreckage, spurred on by the fear of the wreckage catching fire.

NUNS RENDER AID.

Two special trains with thirty doctors, nurses, public officials and officials of the road were rushed on from New Haven. Another special relief train was hurried from Bridgeport with doctors and nurses aboard.

Two blocks or so away from the wreck was the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy, known also as Laurelton Hall. Father Heller, assistant rector, and two sisters hurried to Milford station. Eight other sisters established an emergency hospital on the convent ground in St. Agnes cottage.

This cottage and the two depots, Milford station and Woodmont station, were immediately filled with injured. Father Heller, together with the Rev. Father O'Connor of Northampton, who was injured himself, hurried among the dying, administering the last rites of the Catholic church.

The rear coach of the express, which received the full impact of the local's engine, was upended and split in two. As it settled back it caught under it the bodies of Mrs. Burgen B. Byland of New Haven and of a man believed to be Mayhew Dee Hutchinson, a graduate student in Yale. They were pinned under this wreckage until wrecking crews had lifted it with powerful jacks.

The second last car of the express was squeezed up and out with its roof and jammed against a standard supporting signal. It was teetering on the very edge of a twenty-five foot embankment when the wreckage finally stopped shifting. This standard, against which it swayed, alone held the car and its passengers from plunging down the embankment.

Trolley cars and autos were pressed into service, as the dying and injured were hauled out of the wreckage. The worst injured were rushed to the Bridgeport Hospital by trolley, special train and auto. Many of the injured were sent to New Haven, others after treatment at the emergency hospitals were then sent along to New Haven.

Dead Flagman Real Wreck Hero

Milford, Ct., Feb. 23.—The real hero of the New Haven wreck was George L. Tourtellotte, a flagman, it became known today. How Tourtellotte died, a martyr to the performance of his duty, was told by railroad officials investigating the accident this afternoon.

Tourtellotte was flagman on the express train, which had been stalled. He was sent back to flag any oncoming train which might be on the track just beyond the curve to the rear of the express.

Tourtellotte went to his death while frantically trying to wave back the local train which, a moment later, crashed into the express, and when the freight train appeared around the curve on the tracks he waved as frantically to the engineer of the freight.

Had Tourtellotte simply flagged the local passenger train, he might have lived; for he could have remained standing outside the fourth track on the line. But seeing the freight train, he moved to a spot between the fourth and third tracks, which not only permitted the local train, but also the crew of the freight train, slightly to the rear, to see his signaling.

But neither train had time to stop. Between the two, at his post of double duty, Tourtellotte died a death which railroad officials said was as heroic as that of any hero in fiction.

Tourtellotte was forty-eight years old and unmarried. His home was at No. 49 George street, West Springfield, Mass. He was born in Ohio, and when a child was taken to Manchester, Ct., by his parents. He had been in the New Haven's employ for twenty-two years and had a splendid record for efficient service. He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Carrie Allison of South Manchester, Ct., and by a another sister and a brother living in Manchester, Ct.

545 Victims in New Haven "Wreck Era"

The following list includes 77 dead and 468 injured as the toll of 19 wrecks on the New Haven Railroad in the three years between June, 1911, and July, 1914. Yesterday's accident is the first since July, 1914, in which passengers of the road have been killed.

1911.

July 8—Fairfield, Ct., freight; four killed; signals ignored.

July 12—Bridgeport, Ct., Federal express; twelve killed, 100 injured; due to engineer taking crossing at high speed.

August 28—Middletown, Ct., passenger train; sixty injured; rails spread.

October 15—Berlin Junction, Ct., passenger train; two dead; five injured; due to runaway freight car crashing into rear end of train.

1912.

June 11—Clinton, Mass., passenger train; eight injured; train ran into open switch at high speed.

June 25—Stonington Junction, Ct., passenger train; three killed; four injured; collision due to defective signals.

August 8—Dorchester, Mass., passenger train; five killed, sixteen injured; train jumped track.

August 9—South Boston, Mass., passenger train; seven killed, forty injured; train derailed.

October 3—Westport, Ct., Springfield express; nine killed, fifty injured; due to taking cross-over at high speed.

November 16—Green Farms, Ct., Merchants' Limited; thirty-five injured; defective equipment.

November 17—Putnam, Ct., freight train; one killed, two injured; rear end collision.

December 8—Waterford, Ct., freight trains in head-on collision; one killed; carelessness.

December 12—Willimantic, Ct., passenger train in collision with locomotive; five injured; carelessness of engineer.

February 17—New Haven, Ct., Boston-New York express in collision with rear end of freight train; two injured; fog obscured signals.

February 22—Waterbury, Ct., passenger train; twenty-one injured; rear-end collision in fog.

June 12—Stamford, Ct., Boston express by way of Springfield; six killed, twenty injured; engineer ignored signals when airbrakes refused to work.

June 23—Canaan, Ct., milk cars in collision; one killed, eight injured; carelessness.

September 2—North Haven, Ct., Bar Harbor express rammed by White Mountain night express; twenty-one killed, fifty injured.

1914.

July 21—Westport, Ct., freight car crashes through trolley car loaded with children; five killed, fifty injured; signal failed to work.

Women Describe Terrors of Crash

By International News Service.

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 23.—Louis Goetz and his wife, Lillian, were on their way to New York from their home in West Haven. They were aboard No. 5. Both were brought to the hospital here. Mr. Goetz suffering from cuts and bruises, and Mrs. Goetz from a possible fracture of the left jaw.

"There was a typical holiday crowd on the train," said Mr. Goetz. "Everybody was chatting happily, when a terrific impact threw everyone from their seats.

"A second impact followed. This, I believe, was when we were sideswiped by the freight against which part of our train was thrown after crashing into the express.

"The shrieks of the injured were horrifying. I found my wife under parts of a seat and dragged her out. She was stunned by the fall, and her jaw was broken, where she had struck a seat.

"I dragged her out through a window, and then gave what aid I could in helping others."

Mrs. Charles S. Harmon of Newark, N. J., and her three children were the first passengers from the wreck train to reach this city. Mrs. Harmon had a miraculous escape from serious injury. She received a bad cut in the chest, and the children were cut about the chest and hurt by flying glass. One of the children had a deep cut on the cheek and it was found that another of the boys had several scalp wounds made by glass which was imbedded in the flesh. The boy's hair was literally filled with small pieces of glass.

"I don't know how I ever escaped being killed," said Mrs. Harmon, "I and the children boarded the train at Hartford, where we had been visiting. We were in a parlor car and were lauching among ourselves when the crash came.

"I was thrown half the length of the car and the children were hurled against the chairs on the opposite side.

CAN'T FORGET CRIES.

"The surprise and shock of the accident was so great that I felt sure I was badly hurt. I could see the blood upon my waist, but I decided to get the children before I thought about myself. The boys were crying, but I found that they were not badly hurt, so I gathered them together and we crawled out of the car.

"The force of the collision was so great that the chair on which I was seated was broken in half. The man who sat in front of me was thrown almost to the front door of the car, but although he was stunned, he managed to pick himself up in a short time and with the exception of a few bruises he appeared to be unhurt.

"I can't get the cries and groans of the injured people out of my mind. It was terrible to see so many lying around with arms and legs crushed and blood all over everything. I was in a terror-stricken state. I didn't wait at the scene a minute, but hurried to get a trolley car."

After the injuries had been attended to, Mrs. Harmon and her children took a later train for New York.

SEEKS FIANCEE.

His head and arms tearfully bound, E. W. Scherrer of West Haven presented a pitiful spectacle as he waited here anxiously for word of the condition of his fiancee, Miss Minnie Schwartz of West Haven.

Scherrer and his fiancee were on their way to New York, where a theatre party was to mark their holiday feast. Tickets for a theatre were in Scherrer's pocket when he was taken to the hospital.

His injuries dressed, he sought Miss Schwartz who had been removed to the women's ward. He bore his own injuries with utmost fortitude, and only when doctors told him that he could not see Miss Schwartz did he break down.

Scherrer wept pitifully and for a time seemed in a frenzy, trying to rush past the attendants to where his fiancee lay.

The Rev. John Heller, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church at Milford, when notified of the wreck ran two miles from the church rectory.

ADMINISTERS LAST RITES.

He administered the last rites to one woman and two men who were pinned beneath splintered coaches. The priest then rushed to Laurelton cottage, where he administered conditional absolution to two men.

Patrick Connor of New York died at the Bridgeport Hospital. The twelve other patients of this hospital, while badly lacerated by flying glass and severely bruised and shaken up, are not considered seriously injured.

Colonel E. S. Greeley of New Haven, eighty, was caught under a seat, and had his back severely sprained. Colonel Greeley was on his way to attend a banquet of the Sons of the American Revolution in Bridgeport.

John R. Kilpatrick, former Yale football end; Morgan O'Brien, son of former Chief Justice O'Brien of the New York State Supreme Court, and Allan Corey, son of William E. Corey of the United States Steel Corporation, were in the last car of the Connecticut special.

MANY ESCAPE HURTS.

O'Brien was cut about the head, but escaped without material injury, which was considered remarkable, as almost everyone in the car was hurt in some way. They remarked that a noticeable feature of the wreck was that there seemed to be no screaming at all.

They aided in removing some of the injured, but came here as soon as they could obtain conveyance, as it was necessary that they get to New York as quickly as possible.

Mrs. Arthur Goetz of Bridgeport, was waiting for a train at the Milford station. The train which took survivors to Milford arrived on the time of the one she was expecting.

"No one on the platform knew of the wreck," she said, "until the express rolled in. As the people went forward to board it, the wounded came from all doors.

"It was the most astonishing and terrible sight I have ever seen—so unexpected and so gruesome.

"A man came staggering past me with a huge gash in his head. I stopped him and asked what was the matter.

"'Go in there and try to help some of those people,'" he said.

"There has been a terrible accident. There are fifty persons in that train in a dying condition. Look for yourself.'

"I went to the train and fairly stumbled over bodies. It seemed as if everywhere I looked there was somebody bleeding. I did what I could. Everyone did.

"One man told me at least ten persons had been killed. He said he had seen that many bodies on the roadside beside the coaches. I do not know how many dead there were on the train.

"They took them into the station waiting room. After they were filled survivors were taken up the hill to Laurelton Hall, a girl's high school, which was thrown open to receive them.

"No one I talked to seemed to know how the wreck occurred. They are all suffering too much to talk about anything coherently."

"A man whose name was not learned said the boiler of one locomotive exploded with a roar that finished the panic into which the crash of the impact had thrown the passengers.

"The cries of the wounded and the roar of escaping steam," he said, "combined to make it a terrifying scene. I saw the engineer of our train lying in a ditch beside the track. The whole top of his head had been taken off.

"The smoking car looked like the operating room of a hospital."

Conductor Bray Has Narrow Escape

Springfield, Feb. 23.—Thrown into the path of an oncoming freight train by the force of the collision and rolling over the outer rail as the freight engine and cars rumbled past was the thrilling experience of E. T. Bray of Pineywoods avenue, conductor on the Springfield express, which was wrecked at Milford. Mr. Bray is suffering from a wrenched left knee and hysteria.

"I was standing between the engine and the forward car of No. 79, where we were having a broken air hose," said Mr. Bray, "when the car lurched forward and threw me over on the next track into the path of the freight. I had just rolled out of the way when the freight train passed.

Wells Bray, son of Conductor Bray, was one of fourteen passengers, including four women, who were imprisoned in the sleeping car which toppled over against a telegraph pole. Young Bray with Henry Flanagan of Greenfield, the Pullman car conductor, with whom he was talking when the crash came, broke the lowest windows of the car and assisted the passengers to escape. They pulled out curtains and poles on the sleeper and using them as stretchers carried the dead and wounded to automobiles and special trains.

Young Bray was cut in the face by flying glass and received injuries to his left knee in being crushed between his seat and the window. Flanagan was cut in the throat by flying glass.

AN APPEAL

I'm only a cavalry charger,
And I've dying as fast as I can
(For my body is riddled with bullets—
They've pelted both out and my man).
And though I've no words to express it,
I'm trying this message to tell
To kind folks who work for the Red Cross—
Oh, please help the Blue one as well!

My master was out in a thousand,
And I loved him with all this poor heart
(For horses are built just like humans),
He kind to them—they'll do their part;
So please send our help for our wounded.
And give us a word in your prayers;
This war is a struggle 'twixt right and wrong—
The Russians do it in theirs.

I'm only a cavalry charger,
And my eyes are becoming quite dim
(I really don't mind though I'm "done for,"
For love on I'm going to HIM).
But first I would plead for my comrades,
Who're dying and suffering, too—
Oh, please help the poor wounded horses!
I'm sure that you would—if you knew.

FRENCH ADMIT GAINS MADE BY GERMANS ON VERDUN FRONT

ness is accomplished by the German lines on two sides, legally occupying the point of an angle of the French line.

MORE PRISONERS TAKEN

In addition to their major success north of Verdun, the Germans have scored with success against the British lines and in the Artois, and in an attack against the lines in front of Belfort have captured territory half a mile long and a quarter of a mile deep.

The official German report on these operations reads as follows:

West front—In the neighborhood of the trenches captured east of Souchez (in Artois) on Monday, the enemy's positions were found to have been damaged considerably by mining operations. The number of prisoners taken by us has increased to 11 officers and 348 men of the rank and file.

We also took [illegible] artillery from the enemy.

We penetrated the enemy lines for three kilometers (1¾ miles) at [illegible] and took prisoners.

"On the Messines (the heights of the Mount) artillery duels have continued. East of the Maas (Meuse River) we attacked a position which the enemy had been engaged in fortifying for a year and a half in the neighborhood of Consenvoye.

"In the northern sector of the Woevre district (the region between the Meuse and Moselle Rivers) we delivered an attack extending over a front of nearly seven miles.

CAPTURED MUCH BOOTY.

"This attack was pushed forward and we penetrated into the enemy's lines, inflicting sanguinary losses. In addition to prisoners we captured a large amount of booty.

"In Upper Alsace an attack to the east of Hebrwiller resulted in the capture of an enemy position extending over a front 700 yards wide and 400 yards deep.

"Thirty prisoners fell into our hands.

"There have been numerous air engagements behind the enemy's front and we have won our air fight maintained the upper hand."

The French official report gives an entirely opposite idea of the scope of the battle of today. The battle, according to this report, extended over a nine-mile front. The village of Haumont, west for some positions on the outskirts of the town, fell into German hands. This French official report is made as follows:

"In the Artois district we recaptured some trench sections in the forest of Givenchy. In the region to the north of Verdun a bombardment by the enemy, especially violent, was continued during the night. Infantry engagements have developed on a front extending about fifteen kilometers (9½ miles). The conflict continues with violence from the right bank of the Meuse to the northeast of Haucourt. We prevented the village of Haumont, which we still hold, from falling into the enemy's hands, after a bloody conflict. Our counter-attacks suffered very heavy losses on the enemy.

"To the east of that point a counter-attack operated on our troops in the western part of Chaures forest, located in the sector occupied yesterday by the enemy in the north of Haumont.

DUEL WITH BIG GUNS.

"A strong German attack launched against Herbebois was sharply checked by our artillery.

"In the Woevre the stories of prisoners certain German units were completely destroyed in these actions.

"The artillery fighting is of a very destructive character in going on in the region of Manheulles, in the region of Nonsard, and artillery and mine combats have developed on the [illegible] sector north of Letricourt, was unable to resist our thrusts.

"In the Meuse hills (the heights of the Meuse) artillery duels have continued. East of the Maas (Meuse River) we attacked a position which the enemy had been engaged in fortifying for a year and a half in the neighborhood of Consenvoye.

WAR SUMMARY

There was activity on all fronts yesterday. The Germans attacked at several points in France, carrying 800 yards of French trenches near Souchez. They lost most of this ground, according to the French official report, before counter attacks by the French.

Their attacks on the British front were not pushed home, and were marked only by bombardments and mining warfare.

Artillery combats along the Aisne line for its whole length took place during the day.

At a point north of Verdun, the Germans drove home a number of infantry attacks following an artillery bombardment, and captured a salient of the French line.

The Italians yesterday made some progress for the first time in months. Rome announces the capture of the "mountainous zone of Collo." This has been accomplished by a series of attacks beginning on February 9 and concluding on the night of February 18.

These gains put the Italians within about fifteen miles of the city of Trent. This city is one of their chief objectives; but there is no likelihood of its immediate capture, as the remainder of the territory to be traversed is as difficult as that crossed in the last twenty days.

The net Italian gain in distance is comparable to the gains by one side or the other in trench warfare in France; but it is more important because it involved the capture of a dominating position in the mountains.

The Turkish version of Erzerum's fall has been received. It goes as far on the line of minimizing the incident as the Russian reports have gone in exaggerating its importance.

In a general way, Russia had accomplished nothing in the Caucasus till she took Erzerum. By the same token, having taken Erzerum, she has made a substantial gain and has secured a position of advantage.

The Turkish statement says Erzerum was evacuated after the Turkish defensive work east of that city had been destroyed by the Turks themselves. The report says the forts and town had no military value.

The capture of Erzerum was important, just as today's Italian gain was important—not in itself, but for the opportunity it offers for further advance.

Lord Beresford in the House of Lords urged a strict blockade of Germany; and rumor places a Japanese fleet in the Mediterranean, there to protect Japanese commerce.

PRESIDENT TO FORCE U-BOAT DECISION

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Feb. 23.—President Wilson has served warning on Congress that he will not tolerate any interference at this time with the international relations of the United States.

The situation so far as the administration is concerned, it was learned upon absolutely reliable authority today, is that any agitation now in Congress which could be construed as a criticism of the State Department must inevitably have a seriously adverse effect among the belligerent European nations.

CALL HURRY CONFERENCE.

Alarmed over the strength and insistence of growing congressional sentiment against the administration's attitude on submarine warfare, Democratic leaders this afternoon sought to arrange a secret conference to be held tonight to discuss the matter. Senator Stone, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, after several telephone conferences with Chairman Flood of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, agreed to make an effort to get influential Democratic Senators and Representatives together.

The President at his conference with Senators Stone and Kern and Representative Flood on Monday night told them that he had decided to force an "immediate showdown" with the Teutonic allies on the general question of submarine warfare.

WILL MAKE NO CONCESSION.

In effect, the President is understood to have said that he did not intend making the slightest concession to Germany and Austria. He stands squarely on international law as at present understood. American citizens must have the right to travel at will on unarmed vessels on the high seas.

The President told the Senate and House leaders that he would press for an agreement by the Teutonic powers that they exercise the right of searching, stoppage and search before attacking any merchantman, whether armed or unarmed. And he declared that if Congress passed any resolutions dealing either with warnings to Americans to keep off belligerent vessels or designed in any way to hamper citizens of this country going where they please on the high seas he would veto the legislation.

Although the President was told by Congressional leaders that there was much dissatisfaction with his proposed program, he made it very plain to them that he was determined to press the submarine issue even at the risk of an open break with Germany and Austria.

RIGHT TO CARRY ARMS.

He declared that he was "firmly and irrevocably" determined to maintain the right of merchant vessels to carry arms for defensive purposes and would insist that all such vessels have the right of clearances from the United States ports at all times.

To a suggestion factored by Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia that the President communicate with Congress and outline what his plans are in the event of a real crisis developing, President Wilson made a flat refusal. Until diplomatic measures are exhausted, he said, he will not throw light on pending negotiations. This, however, will not interfere with the proposed speech of Senator Stone, who will, as chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, defend the administration policy in a set speech to be made shortly.

Stone, in his speech, will give fresh warning to the Senate that any discussion of embargo resolutions, or the like resolution, which would demand that passports be refused Americans traveling on belligerent vessels, will in the opinion of the President seriously embarrass American interests.

DEMAND OPEN DISCUSSION.

Whether this will prevent an open debate, however, is very doubtful. There are many members of both houses of Congress who are absolutely opposed to the present policy of the administration and some of them are expected to decline to keep quiet at the request of the White House. Officials who know President Wilson's views say that unless Germany accepts the position of the United States—that all merchant vessels, armed or unarmed, will not be attacked without warning—a break in the diplomatic relations between this government and the central powers cannot be avoided.

This break will come simultaneously with the first attack on a vessel carrying arms either as passengers or members of the crew. It was explained today that it might come sooner, should Germany, in her reply to the Ancona note, made on Count von Bernstorff, flatly reject the suggestion of this government that it agree to observe the requirements of international law in its renewed submarine war which is to begin a week from today.

There is no attempt being made to disguise the belief in official circles that the situation is fraught with serious possibilities. The President's attitude, officials say, will permit of no compromise.

BELIEVE BREAK IS NEAR.

If advices from Germans sources accurately reflect the viewpoint of the Berlin government, officials say that a diplomatic break is certain. But officials here are hopeful that Germany eventually will acquiesce in the American position that international law shall be observed in all submarine operations.

It is considered certain, however, that a definite result, one way or the other, will be obtained within the next ten days.

FINE TICKET MEN FOR SPECULATING

William Williams and Walter Martin pleaded guilty and were each fined $5 in the Municipal Court today when arraigned charged with speculating in theatre tickets.

Snow Prevents Rapid Advance of Russians

By International News Service.

Petrograd, Feb. 22.—A blizzard is raging in the mountains of Armenia, where the victorious Russian army of invasion is cutting up the Turkish forces into small bands and effecting their capture or annihilation.

Cold weather and deep snows are hindering the flight of the Turks, as well as the advance of the Russians toward Trebizond and Diarbekr. Provisions and ammunition are being moved forward with the utmost difficulty and the Turkish troops fleeing through northern Armenia are reported to have abandoned many guns.

Work of repairing the forts at Erzerum, and of remounting guns is going forward under the direction of Russian engineers. A large amount of booty, including artillery, munitions and food, has been dug up outside of the city.

The strategy of Grand Duke Nicholas, Russian commander-in-chief in the Caucasus embraces a double object.

First—A possible attack upon Constantinople from the east.

Second—A drive against the Bagdad railway to cut off the Turkish army in Mesopotamia and help the British troops in that war theatre.

It is learned from a German source that there is much anxiety in Berlin over the situation in Turkey. The Russian victories in the Caucasus have been minimized by German military experts, and it is claimed that Erzerum was not strongly defended, but official dispatches from Tiflis state that the Turks, under German officers, made a desperate effort to save the city.

RUSSIANS DESTROY 2 GERMAN 'PLANES

By International News Service.

Petrograd, Feb. 23.—Two German aeroplanes that were trying to attack Dvinsk have been shot down west of that city by Russian artillery, according to official dispatches from the front today.

In Volynia the Russians delivered an attack which dislodged the Austro-German troops from some of their positions on the Dubno-Olyka line. (Dubno lies on the Ikwa River, southeast of Lutsk. Olyka is thirty-six miles northeast of Dubno.)

The following statement was given out at the War Office:

"Near Olyka and Dubno the Russians echeq important positions of the enemy. The Germans and Austrians delivered stubborn counter attacks, but these were repulsed. In the Riga region the Germans are showing the greatest activity. Between Riga and Selden two German air craft were shot down on the shores of Lake Babit, west of Dvinsk, and the occupants were made prisoners."

POPE SEEKS TO END AEROPLANE BOMB ATTACKS

By CAMILLO CIANFARRA.
International News Service Correspondent.

Rome, Feb. 23.—Pope Benedict XV. has taken active steps to end the campaign of bomb-dropping from aeroplanes, which has resulted in the killing of innocent civilians and damage of many noted churches near the Austro-Italian theatre of war. The pontiff has already approached Austria on this subject.

The attitude of the Vatican toward aeroplane raids was revealed today, when it was announced that, by direction of the Pope, Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, had instructed the archbishops of Ravenna and Milan and bishops of other cities bombarded by Austrian aeroplanes to express the profound sorrow of the pontiff for the innocent victims and his deep regret over the damage caused to churches and other famous monuments.

The Cardinal's letter states that the pontiff has repeatedly recommended to the Austro-Hungarian government that the war be conducted in conformity with recognized principles, whereby monuments and churches of undefended cities are safeguarded.

"Further," the letter says, "the Holy Father has desired the suppression of aeroplane bomb-throwing in the Italo-Austrian conflict. If this noble purpose has not been achieved, it is not due to any lack of effort or interest on the part of the common father of the faithful."

SHIP BOUND FROM NEW YORK IS SUNK

Rotterdam, Feb. 23.—The Dutch steamer La Flandre, 2,313 tons, bound from New York to Rotterdam, has been sunk, presumably by a mine. Only two members of the crew were reported saved in the first advices received here today. La Flandre sailed from New York on February 3.

Hunt German Radio in New England Hills

By the International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Belief that one or possibly more secret German wireless stations are operating in the White Mountains in New England today led the Navy Department and the Department of Justice to begin a co-operative investigation.

Officials while admitting the investigation was under way declined to give details.

(Clip out and save)

How to Cure Rheumatism

Here is a prescription for rheumatism (easily mixed at home) used all over the U. S. for many years and said to be the surest remedy, neutralizing the acid in the blood and gives results after first dose: "One ounce of Toris compound and one ounce syrup of Sarsaparilla. Put these two ingredients in half pint of whiskey. Use a tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime." Get ingredients at any drug store. Genuine Toris comes only in one ounce sealed yellow packages.

Surest for Coughs and Colds

Don't experiment on a bag cough or cold, it is very risky. The following formula, easily mixed at home, makes one of the best and quickest cough remedies obtainable, often curing the worst cough in a day. Pine as medicine is as old as the Bible, but here is best form: Half ounce of Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine) and two ounces of Glycerine, mix well in a pint of whiskey. Use a teaspoonful frequently as required. (Similar doses to children). Be sure to get the genuine Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine), put up only in half-ounce bottles, each enclosed in a screw-top case.

Frosts Bites, Corns and Sore Feet

Don't endure foot agony. Here is a remedy for quick results. It works through the pores, removing the cause: "Two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in warm foot bath." Almost instant relief for aching and sweaty feet; corns and callouses can be peeled right off. Specially effective for sore bunions, chilblains and frost bites. Genuine Calocide in twenty-five-cent packages at all drug stores.

"The Word JITNEY Is Slang for NICKEL," Explains Mr. Lockhart!

"For Thursday I Announce My Marvellous Mill-End Sale Sensation--JITNEY DAY--Selling Thousands of Things for 5c."

DOUBLE STAMPS FORENOONS
"I want to congratulate the women of Boston for having collected such vast quantities of stamps during my sale," says Mr. Lockhart.

Over Half a Million Given Last Week
"Do you know what this means?" he says. "It means that the popularity of, and the demand for, New England Profit-Sharing Stamps is increasing by leaps and bounds—it means that every day hundreds of women are starting to fill one of those special shopping cards, which Houghton & Dutton furnish to all customers.
"Women who never collected stamps before are now the most enthusiastic. It's easier to collect 100 than 1000 and those can hold 1000. Your card redeems for 1500 to more articles or 300 in cash. Come to my Jitney Sale and fill a card during the day."

"Tomorrow I will give the public the famous LOCKHART "Mill-End" Jitney Day. This announcement means that thousands and thousands of people will fly hither and thither throughout this store, running down the Jitney (5c) bargains. The enthusiastic crowds will remind you of a perpetual flea-hunt, for a Jitney (5c) will buy the extra articles advertised below, and many of them are worth fifty and a hundred times as much. The mysterious motives that prompt me to give this stirking sale so radically different are honest. I do it to advertise my sale and my business in your city, and everybody who reads this advertisement and visits this store tomorrow will admit is wonderful worth of every article for a Jitney (5c)"

DETAIN LAMBERT GIRL'S CHUM

Girl Friend of Poison Victim Held Practically a Prisoner; Orpet Insists on Innocence

Former Bay State Student to Waive Examination and Wait for Action of Grand Jury

Courage, pluck, or thoughtless perfidy, cause of Marian Lambert, for whose death Will Orpet, the University of Wisconsin student and former Lake Forest, Mass., youth, is held, is more than suspected, it was learned today.

Miss Lucile Wise was aware of the dangerous interest Marian Lambert had given Orpet, is believed to be the most important witness against the student. She was not called to testify before the coroner's inquest and will not be permitted to testify before the magistrate. State Attorney Healy wants to have her story heard first by the Grand Jury and will not permit her to disclose her knowledge until the proper time.

Orpet, who was held for the Grand Jury on the charge of murdering the schoolgirl sweetheart, today relied upon his confidence that his innocence will be established.

"I have no comment," young Orpet said today. "I expect to show that I am innocent and will establish my innocence in time."

"We expected the coroner's jury to hold our client," James H. Wilkerson, of Orpet's counsel, said. "It means nothing. The State will never convict Orpet on the evidence uncovered."

Orpet, it was announced today, will plead not guilty, waive examination, and await Grand Jury action when he is arraigned Monday for a preliminary hearing before a magistrate at Lake Forest.

Counsel for Orpet said they considered evidence brought out at the inquest strengthened their case. They declared that proof that Marian had removed nine grains of carbolic acid tablets from a bottle in her room and that the bottle, when sent here, was found, indicated she had removed the glove for the purpose. Traces of poison in crystalline form.

State's Attorney Ralph J. Pasy of Lake County predicted the Grand Jury will indict Orpet without much delay.

Coroner Taylor declared every member of the coroner's jury was in favor of holding Orpet.

Sees Peril for Girls In Morals of Today

By DR. BELLE J. MACDONALD,
Former Medical Inspector in the Department of Health.

New York, Feb. 23—The average man of today celebrates or did his grandfather in his mental and moral attitude toward girls and women.

In those days the uncharteroned woman was ungoverningly a public prey. To command the chivalry of men a young girl was kept under close surveillance until marriage.

Today thousands and thousands of young girls and women are making their way in the world, without the protection of a home or guardian, and are doing amazingly well when we consider the grave difficulties and dangers under which they labor and nevertheless establish the present attitude of men toward women.

The natural instinct of a good girl is to regard her virtue sacred and to protect it with her life, if need be. She does not look forward to love as the crowning point in her life and, unless she is taught the attitude of the average man toward woman, she is apt to slide through confiding love, to her undoing.

WOMEN MOST CHIVALROUS.

Women are the truly chivalrous sex. How often has it come to physicians to witness acts of the greatest heroism in young girls who have been deluded into making a false step and then deserted.

Instead of trying to throw the blame on the betrayer, they keep him in a sacred, go through the trials of maternity, and, out of consideration for neither parents, cling to their child and bring it up as best they can.

Compare this action with that of the cowardly scoundrel who said, "She was as much to blame as I."

Until we have a generation of boys and men born of parents, especially fathers, who have given an unfaltering code of honorable instincts toward women, to their boys, and who set a moral example afterward, we will not be placed much further as regards Marian Lambert, or those in the lives of many girls.

Decent instincts come from decent, honorable instincts come from an inherited sense of honor, virtues are born, not made.

ADVISES MORAL LESSONS.

In fear of the inheritance that is the just due of a generation, fathers and mothers, schools and colleges, should make it their business to teach sex facts, teach boys and young men their moral responsibilities, teach them that their bodies are divine temples, that the sacred function of procreation is God-given and not to be defiled by selfishness and impurity of life, and, above all, that the young girl in her tender youth must be spared desecration, for she is the potential mother of the race, and, as such, should be revered.

It is said that the twentieth century woman's entrance into the industrial and professional world is largely responsible for the loss of chivalry of the men of today. As the hands of time cannot be turned backward they must go forward.

The economic and social conditions of the twentieth century under which we live cannot be compared to the days of our grandmothers, when a young girl was passed from the school or guardian into the arms of a husband; when personal liberty was a breach of etiquette, which left the young person who dared the conventions under suspicion.

As the new freedom of women has been brought about by economic pressure, not due to their making, but to which situation they have risen in a remarkable way, the mental and moral adjustment of men has not kept pace with these changed conditions.

A sad commentary on our social laws is laid here. Laws allow boys and men unbridled liberty and which, it known, are overlooked as youthful folly, and do not lower their social standing. Laws are so damning to women that if she deviates from the straight and narrow path there is nothing left to her but death or worse.

That such warnings as have been published in the Lambert case should be necessary to save our girls from their natural protectors argues well that there is something very wrong in the upbringing of our boys.

Let the girls know the truth, and compel in the boys the growth of a sense of responsibility.

Blames Society for Lambert Tragedy

By EDITH ELLIS,
Dramatist and Author of the "Devil's Garden."

New York, Feb. 23—How is paid in society and how its tastes are formed.

Society flings its young women into the lion's jaw and then cries out when they are crushed. It makes no provisions for the safety of the girls and protests to be shocked when they are destroyed. Hypocrisy, your name is Society!

Efforts are made to save young girls by introducing sex instruction into the schools and loud antiquarian echoes throughout the land. Ask the persons who protest against such a measure what they will furnish in lieu of school instruction and they will say, "Let the mothers discharge that duty." Yet some of them are the very mothers who shirk that duty.

That there may be an element of danger in such instruction is the unforeseen, I admit. I grant. But poisons are to some extent necessary in the treatment of physical ills. The pharmacopeia recognizes them as essential though dangerous ingredients, and they are labelled, "Poison" and handled with care.

So with what corresponds to these poisons in the mental world. Though poisons, they are likewise preventive and curative, and by the instructor should be handled with care.

At the other end of the arc of society's stupidity stand social and legal punishment. How inconsistent! In the minds of the young is implanted not knowledge but terror—terror of the social law.

Since the boy and girl in this regrettable Lambert case are what society, its hypocrisy, made them, it is inconsistent that the boy should atone for his youthful sin by his life.

WILLIAM H. ORPET, Wisconsin University student, held by coroner's jury as poisoner of pretty Marian Lambert.

MEAT CAUSE OF LAME BACK AND KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if your back is aching.

Meat forms uric acid, which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side, headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Advertisement.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During those years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets; you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now, and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

L. R. SPEARE OF NEWTON CENTRE IS DEAD

Lewis R. Speare, one of Boston's best known business men, and a nationally famous automobile man, died early today at No. 6 Sumner street, Newton Centre. He has been ill some time and a month ago was obliged to give up his business activities because of his physical condition. He was in his fifty-fifth year.

Mr. Speare was president of the Alden Speare's Sons Company, was president of the Massachusetts State Automobile Association, and a former president of the American Automobile Association. His motor interests and activities were countrywide, and motorists everywhere are indebted to his efforts in initiating movements for better roads and the enactment of automobile laws.

The activity dated from the advent of the auto. He was a founder and the first president of the Bay State Automobile Association of Boston, and was one of the chief organizers of the Massachusetts State Association, holding the office of chairman of its legislative committee until 1911, after which he became the association's president.

In 1909 he was elected president of the American Automobile Association, after filling the unexpired term of Theodore Mathilde and he served until 1911. He was also a member of the leading board in the American Association and was a member of the executive board. He was the founder of the "American Motorist," the official organ of the association.

At the same time Mr. Speare was closely connected with other business enterprises.

He was born in Boston, June 6, 1861, the second son of Alden Speare. After finishing school he entered the banking house of Kidder, Peabody & Co., and in 1882 he became a partner in his father's business. Upon his father's death in 1902 he became president of the company. In his early business career he organized two industries, one for the production of emery, and the other for the manufacture of starch.

Mr. Speare was a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce was for several years vice-president and director of the Home Market Club. From 1903 till 1911 he was trustee of the Westboro Insane Hospital. He was president of the Claflin Guard Veteran Association, and a member of the Massachusetts Society, Sons of the American Revolution. He was a member of numerous clubs.

Mr. Speare leaves a widow, a daughter, Miss Caroline M. Speare, a mother, Mrs. Alden Speare of Newton Centre, a brother, E. Ray Speare, treasurer and general manager of the Alden Speare's Sons Company, and by two sisters, Mrs. William E. Huntington of Newton Centre, and Mrs. William I. Haven of Summit, N. J.

Overlook Hen in Search of a Prisoner

Charles Webber was taken into the Salem court today by Chief Woodbury of Beverly to answer to a charge of breaking into Florence Driscoll's henroop and stealing two hens.

While the chief and his prisoner were waiting in court Captain Jones telephoned from the Beverly police station.

"Say, chief," he said, "there's a hot one. You know we searched that man Webber when we locked him up Monday night?"

"We surely did."

"Well, since you took him off to court today I went past his cell and there's a hen in it, chief."

"A hen! But how did it get there?" the chief dazedly inquired.

"Dunno, chief," said Captain Jones, "unless he had an egg and hatched it and raised the hen over night."

Judge Sears sent Webber to jail for six months.

SHARON ELOPERS ARE FOUND BY WORK OF GIRL DETECTIVE

How a Sharon young woman for seven months trailed eighteen-year-old Helen Crocker, an attractive Sharon telephone operator, and Warren Stone Cram, who disappeared from Sharon last Summer, was told today following the return to Boston of the couple.

Miss Crocker is now with relatives in Boston, while Cram was arraigned in the Stoughton District Court on a forgery charge.

The discovery of the couple and the arrest of Cram were due to the detective work of the Sharon young woman, whose name was withheld by the police. But the Sharon authorities made public the story of how she had traced the missing couple step by step and had finally secured a clew which located them on the outskirts of the town of Essex, in northern New York State.

The young woman "detective"—it is said this was her first attempt at sleuthing—used a letter system. She wrote letters broadcast, giving descriptions.

Finally her untiring efforts were rewarded in a response from a constable at Essex. He wrote that a couple answering the descriptions of Miss Crocker and Cram were living in a two-room building near Essex.

The amateur detective forwarded the constable a photograph of Miss Crocker. The constable replied that this was a photograph of the girl living at Essex.

Her long search having borne some fruit, Chief of Police Hervey T. P. Derry of Sharon, and Chief of Police Vanston of Stoughton set to work to secure extradition papers. They dispatched a telegram to Essex asking that Cram be detained. Last Sunday Chief Derry and the young woman "sleuth" went to Essex, where they found the thermometer 18 below zero. They walked miles through the snow to the hut occupied by the couple they sought. They found the pair in straitened circumstances, and were informed that neighbors had been carrying them food for some time.

"Oh, I want to see mother so much," Miss Crocker was quoted as saying. The meeting came later in Boston, where the telephone girl, in tears, told her story to her mother.

Cram was locked up at Stoughton, on a warrant charging him with forging the endorsement to a check issued by the Sharon Box Company. Cram was formerly a foreman at the box company's plant.

According to the police, Cram, who is about thirty-six years old, and whose wife had divorced him, told Miss Crocker he would marry her as soon as the divorce decree became absolute.

Miss Crocker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brenton Crocker of Sharon, and in 1913 graduated from the Sharon High School. She first met Cram while employed in the Sharon telephone office.

It is said that Miss Crocker's parents objected to attentions Cram tried to pay her, and that Cram boasted he would win the girl despite parental objection.

The disappearance of the couple came on the night of July 12 last. Cram is said to have hired an auto in which he drove to the telephone office in Sharon. After Miss Crocker had entered the car Cram, according to the chauffeur, drew a revolver and forced the man to drive the machine to Newtonville, where Cram bought tickets for himself and Miss Crocker for the midnight train to Springfield.

That was where the young woman "detective" took up the trail last summer.

YOU NEED NOT SUFFER WITH BACKACHE AND RHEUMATISM

For centuries GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been a standard household remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and stomach trouble and all diseases connected with the urinary organs. The kidneys and bladder are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers of your blood. If the poisons which enter your system through the blood and stomach are not entirely thrown out by the kidneys and bladder, you are doomed.

Weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, headache, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall-stones, gravel, difficulty when urinating, cloudy and bloody urine, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, all warn you to look after your kidneys and bladder. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are what you need.

They are not a "patent medicine" nor a "kidney cure." For 200 years they have been a standard household remedy. They are the pure, original Imported Haarlem Oil your great-grandmother used, and are perfectly harmless. The healing, soothing oil soaks into the cells and lining of the kidneys and bladder, driving out the poisonous germs, new life, new strength and health will come as you continue this treatment. When completely restored to your usual vigor, continue taking a capsule or two each day. They will keep you in condition and prevent a return of the disease.

Do not delay a minute. Delays are especially dangerous in kidney and bladder trouble. Death by slow poison is killing many a man young in years who has made the fatal mistake of failing to understand the warnings of kidney trouble. All reliable druggists sell GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They will refund the money if not as represented. In three sizes, sealed packages. Ask for the original Imported GOLD MEDAL. Accept no substitutes.

ELLIOTT CALLS SOUND LINES NECESSARY

The cutting off of Long Island Sound liners from the New Haven road will seriously cripple New England transportation facilities, President Howard Elliott told the Interstate Commerce Commission at a public hearing in the library of the Boston Chamber of Commerce today.

President Elliott declared that if the boats are taken away, the road will make all shipments by rail, which will necessitate the building of new tracks and involve the expenditure of much capital. He also said the New Haven would have built vessels which would have been extremely useful during the recent freight crisis, but for the uncertainty as to what action was to be taken regarding the Sound lines.

The hearing was on a petition of the road for permission to retain control of its various water lines on Long Island Sound, in accordance with the terms of the Panama Canal Act of 1912. John H. Howell, special examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission, represented that body, and Adrian H. Boone and A. H. Elder appeared as counsel.

Benjamin L. Smoot and Armur D. Russell were counsel for the railroad, and the Department of Justice was represented by H. LaRue Brown and Frank M. Swacker, special assistants to the Attorney-General. Members of the transportation department of the Chamber of Commerce were present to assist the New Haven in its fight to retain the Sound lines.

ELLIOTT A WITNESS.

President Elliott, who was the first witness, said he was president of the New Haven, New England Navigation Company, and New England Steamship Company, and that he assumed control of the New Haven, September 2, 1913.

"Will you please tell the examiner how you happened to come back to New England and take up the transportation problem here," asked Mr. Spock.

President Elliott replied:

"I came back to the transportation business in this part of the country for two principle reasons. I was intensely interested in the welfare of New England. It appealed to me to spend the last years in working out the great economic problem that is of a national importance. It appealed to me as one who had spent his whole life in transportation work. There has been a great deal of delay in bringing the matter to a solution, owing to complications that no one dreamed of when we started.

"We are trying to give the maximum service on both rail and water lines. I am president of the Sound lines, but have been trying to have them operate on an entirely independent basis. I have not interfered in the rates. They have been established by natural forces.

DOUBLE SERVICE PLANS.

"I have never given an order to raise or decrease Sound line rates. It is true that there has been a readjustment of Sound line rates, but this was made necessary by the readjustment of railroad rates. The latter were put on a more scientific basis.

"We have not tried to put the steamer service in the background. I have been on every boat of our fleet, and have met every officer. I am doing what I can to make the present management efficient, and to prepare for the future.

"It does not seem to me that any good can come of harping on the past and saying that this should have been done or that should have been done.

"The Commission should be careful in taking any step that will cripple Sound line transportation facilities. In my opinion the cutting off of Sound lines will hurt the transportation facilities of New England very greatly.

"The uncertainty as to what is to be done about our steamship lines has during the past two years, greatly hampered us in giving New England the service it deserves."

CHOIR GIRL IS MISSING FROM WORCESTER

Worcester, Feb. 23.—Seventeen-year-old Agnes Barlow, member of the girl's choir of the Piedmont Congregational Church, is missing from her home, No. 4 Griffin Terrace, this city, and the police have been asked to assist in finding her.

She is very pretty, prominent in church and Sunday school work, and a favorite in the local quicker social set.

According to the girl's mother, Mrs. Angie Barlow, she took a dress suit case filled with clothes when she left. The police have inquired among her friends to ascertain if she had any male acquaintances, any of whom may be missing. So far as known she had none.

"I cannot explain why Agnes left home," said the girl's mother. "I do not know what the bottom of her, She is a good girl and I hope no harm has come to her. She has never been away from home before without my knowing where she was. I never had any difficulty with her."

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.—Advertisement.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

If cross, bilious, sick, feverish, or full of cold, take no chances.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Children love this "fruit laxative" and nothing else clean the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become filled clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Don't scold. Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Advertisement.

Alkali Makes Soap Bad for Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.

BRIG.-GEN. H. C. COOK DIES IN FALL RIVER

Fall River, Feb. 23.—Brigadier-General Henry Clay Cook, U. S. A. (retired), a veteran of the Civil War and an Indian fighter of note, is dead at his home, aged seventy-nine, following an illness of three months.

When he retired in 1898, because of disability, Cook was ranked as colonel, but Congress by an act in 1914 advanced him to the rank of brigadier-general. He was brevetted captain in 1865 for bravery in the Atlanta campaign.

PRINCESS SAYS INFANT IS NOT HERS

By International News Service.

New York, Feb. 23.—The hearing of the separation suit of Count Ivan and Princess Miskinoff was resumed before Justice Clark in the Supreme Court today.

The chief interest today will centre in the testimony of Dr. Foster, who attended Madame Jackson Gouraud during her three days' illness, when she is alleged by the Prince to have become the mother of the baby he claims as his daughter.

That there really is a small baby now in the family of Madame Gouraud was unhesitatingly vouched for by one of her legal advisers. He also went on to explain that this baby is in no way related to Madame, nor to her foster daughter Yvonne, nor to her husband, Prince Miskinoff.

Yes, it is true that there is a baby in Madame's household now," said this informant. "But it is not her own. For many years Madame has been interested in taking babies into her family to bring up as her own.

TOOK BABY IN APRIL.

"This child, that the Prince alleges to be his, is the last one upon which her generous fancy has fallen.

"This baby is now eleven months old. It came into Madame's possession the last part of April, so it was two months old. Undoubtedly this is the baby that Miskinoff would have the world believe was born in it the early part of April, when she was in a private sanitarium here. All this will be brought out in the course of the trial.

"We hope that it will be necessary to prove only that Mr. and Mrs. Miskinoff are not the baby's parents. We hope it will not be necessary to go directly into the baby's real antecedents. Madame has undertaken the child's upbringing. It will be known as her foster child. She prefers to let it rest there.

"Yvonne was taken in this way by Mme. Gouraud, when she was but a few days old."

When this story was brought to the attention of Prince Miskinoff he declared:

PRINCE ASTOUNDED

"Me? My wife says that she has adopted our baby Verein. Again I am astonished. Does a mother adopt her child? Is there not enough things for me to learn? I, the Prince Miskinoff, am Verein's father. She looks like me, yes."

The story of the four months' "love feast" of Prince Miskinoff and his stepdaughter, Yvonne, sixteen, was told today by neighbors at Edgemere, L. I. The couple arrived in Edgemere on July 1, last year. Immediately on their arrival, according to the neighbors, the Prince took up quarters at the Edgemere Club, a pretentious building on the sea front.

A quarter of a mile away Yvonne sought shelter at the large bungalow of Mrs. Holmes, also beside the sea.

From the first the Prince went about like a man distracted, his neighbors said.

LED LIFE OF PLEASURE.

On the other hand, Yvonne led a life of continual pleasure. She was in the midst of all gaiety and always dressed in the height of fashion. On one occasion she was reproved by officials of the club for her daring bathing dress.

"Her striking beauty and gay manners attracted everybody's attention," said a neighbor. "Whenever she laughed everybody on the beach laughed. No matter where she went she was the centre of attraction.

"She evidently was very much in love with the Prince. She paid every attention to him, smiled and joked, but could not rouse him from the apparent stupor into which he had fallen.

"They used to meet every morning about 11 o'clock in the bathing pavilion. They stayed about an hour each day, and then after lunch spent the afternoon on the beach.

"They were never alone together, because Yvonne was always surrounded by a host of admirers.

CREATED SENSATION.

"It did not matter how hard Yvonne tried to amuse the Prince, he never abandoned his preoccupied air. His eyes were always cast upon the ground, and his head sunk upon his shoulders.

"Even when Yvonne caused the greatest stir of the season the Prince remained unmoved. This was during the masked ball at the club. She appeared as the goose girl, and in her arms carried a live goose. Throughout the evening she danced with one arm holding the goose and the other holding onto her partner, laughing at great glee at the sensation she was causing.

At times, said another, she went about with her hair in braids down her back.

Both stayed up until the early hours of the morning and were among the last to retire. Then the Prince would escort his trial bride across the beach to her bungalow. How long they remained on the porch none knew, but the Prince never relaxed his precocupied air.

EVENING COURSES FOR HARVARD URGED

Evening courses are advocated editorially by the Harvard Crimson today. The editorial in part follows: "If some undergraduate courses, morning as well as afternoon, were moved to the evening, the efficiency of undergraduate life would be increased. The amount of scurrying around the Yard, commuting between classes in the good study hours of the morning, would be reduced."

MOHR VILLA AT NEWPORT TO BE SOLD

Providence, R. I., Feb. 23.—The Mohr villa at Newport, which Dr. C. Franklin Mohr bought and gave to his wife for a Christmas present in 1911, is shortly to be sold, it became known today.

The villa has been on the market since Dr. Mohr's estate was put in shape for settlement. All property of the deceased is to be sold, the villa among the rest. Mrs. Mohr is known to wish to keep the villa, but to do so she will have to buy it in the open market.

Albert A. Baker, assistant city solicitor, is conducting the negotiations for the prospective purchaser. He, with Phillip J. Knauer, who represents Dr. Mohr's children by his first wife, and William F. Carroll, attorney for the estate, met in Newport yesterday and inspected the villa carefully.

Upon his return Mr. Knauer said: "We met the villa to be sold without a hitch. Negotiations are practically complete."

He would not say whether Mrs. Mohr did not wish to keep the property.

"If she does," he said, "she will have to buy it. She can buy it as well as anyone else. The estate is on the market."

Attorney Baker declined to say who he was acting for in negotiating for the purchase of the estate.

Happy Rounds Up More Stars for Big Cabaret

Although Washington's Birthday was one of his busiest days, "Happy," popularly crowned King of the Newsboys, found time enough to secure some brand new talent for the eighth annual ball and cabaret show of the Happy Twenty, which is to be held in Convention Hall, March 10.

Among the new stars he has rounded up are the University Four of Cambridge, a quartet extraordinary; Zanfa, a famous cabaret singer, and Patsy Miller, a warbler and dancer.

These, added to the already long list of favorites, makes this year's event look like the best ever.

Billy Lang of the Feist Publishing Company, who has charge of the cabaret arrangements, vouches that the talent which Happy has secured is about the best he has ever seen.

Here are some of the other luminaries who will take part in the cabaret show: Sophie Bennett, Della Tuttle, Billy Gleason and the Feist entertainers, known as the "Big Four," and composed of Tom Quinn, Abel Baer, Charles Ray and Victor A. Viverros.

The evening's festivities will be started off with a concert from 8 to 9. A famous band, directed by Alexander the Great, will render the music. The dance begins at 9 and will continue until 2. The cabaret will be under way at 10 and last for six hours.

One of the features of the dancing program will be exhibitions by Harry Malloy and Margaret Scollins, two of the best known exponents of modern dancing in the country.

WOMAN IS BADLY BITTEN BY 4 DOGS

Newburyport, Feb. 23.—Mrs. Richard Hale of No. 39 Winter street is in the Anna Jaques Hospital in a serious condition, her face torn and lacerated as a result of being attacked by four dogs.

Two of the dogs are owned by her son, George R. Hale. The others are being boarded at the Hale home. Mrs. Hale was alone in the house at the time. She had been warned, it is said, to keep away from the place where the dogs were confined.

About 300,000 Babies Die Before One Year

The Census Bureau estimates that 300,000 babies died last year before the age of one year, and it is stated that one-half of these deaths were needless if all mothers were strong and infants were breast-fed.

Expectant mothers should increase their strength with the strength-building fats in Scott's Emulsion which enriches the blood, aids the quality of milk and feeds the very life cells.

Scott's is doubly important during nursing. Physicians prescribe it. Always insist on Scott's—the white food medicine. Always free from alcohol.

CHICAGO WOMAN TALKS 'PADDED PAYROLL'

Chicago, Feb. 23.—The political atmosphere of Chicago was filled with charges and counter-charges today as the "battle of petitions" in the municipal graft charge scandal waxed hotter every hour. Payroll padding by women politicians was the latest charge in the "Maine Says You Must Come Across" edition.

Each new graft charge made by Mrs. Pace Waller Eaton, resigned superintendent of Social Surveys, was denied by the person at whom it was aimed. Mayor William Hale Thompson, speaking for himself and Mrs. Thompson, who is known to her close friends as Maiele, said today that a thorough investigation of Mrs. Eaton's statements that she was compelling to give up one-third of her $3,000 salary as part of the graft program, was under way.

"They used to meet every morning about 11 o'clock in the bathing pavilion. They stayed about an hour each day, and then after lunch spent the afternoon on the beach.

BADGER WANTS U. S. TO HAVE FIRST SEA POWER IN WORLD

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The administration's preparedness program was heavily bombarded before the House Naval Committee.

Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, the "Father of Preparedness," attacked the land defence plans as prepared by the House Military Affairs Committee, while Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger of the Navy General Board, and former commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, adversely criticised the administration's naval program.

Representative Gardner introduced in the House a land defence bill calling for a standing army of 281,000, which he said was prepared by the Army War College.

In a statement accompanying the bill he vigorously attacked the tentative measure prepared by the House Military Affairs Committee. He asserted that the committee's plans were inadequate, and would not provide the necessary forces to meet a real emergency.

The object of the building policy formulated in 1903 by the Navy General Board, it was explained by Rear Admiral Badger, was to keep the United States ahead of Germany in the race for naval supremacy. He explained that the policy had contemplated a fleet of forty-eight first-line battleships by 1919 to accomplish its purpose.

SCORES DANIELS' PLAN.

Admiral Badger told the committee that the five-year program proposed by the administration in its naval defence scheme would not increase the present rate of naval construction. He asserted that Secretary of the Navy Daniels had asked the General Board of the navy for a program based on an expenditure of $1,000,000,000 a year.

The board recommended the building of sixteen capital ships, of which four dreadnoughts and three battle cruisers were to be laid down the first year. Under the General Board program, he said, all of the program would have been completed in seven years.

Under the program proposed by Secretary Daniels, Admiral Badger said, it will be eight years before the sixteen capital ships proposed will be in commission.

"In view of this fact," said the admiral, "the proposed program is in no way an advance over the present plan of building two battleships a year."

The navy needs immediately, Admiral Badger said, six battle cruisers, carrying ten fourteen-inch guns. He said that these ships should be provided without waiting to increase the number of dreadnoughts in the fleet.

The new dreadnoughts to be constructed, Admiral Badger told the committee, would be equipped, under the General Board plans, with ten fifteen-inch guns, in five two-gun turrets.

Asked by members of the committee where the United States Navy stood in naval strength among the nations of the world, Admiral Badger declared that England was first, Germany was second, and the United States and France were third in places.

This estimate, he said, was based upon the naval strength of European nations prior to the present war. Naval construction in Europe since then has been kept a close secret, he said.

The American navy, Admiral Badger said, should be second in the world.

U. NEEDS OVER 550 SHIPS.

"How many ships would be necessary to make the United States Navy equal to that of Great Britain?" asked Representative Kelly.

"We should have forty dreadnoughts, fifteen battle cruisers, twenty-five scout cruisers, 200 submarines, 250 destroyers and the necessary auxiliary vessels," said Admiral Badger.

Admiral Badger disagreed with other naval officers who have appeared before the committee on the subject of submarines. He asserted that the navy should continue its present policy of building small submarines for shore station work, and 1,500-ton submarines for service with the fleet. This country, he said, has no use for the 800-ton submarine of the German U-boat type.

When he introduced his bill for a standing army of 281,000 men, Representative Gardner issued a statement in which he declared for compulsory military training. He said that the scheme evolved by the Military Affairs Committee was an evasion.

"According to newspaper reports," said Mr. Gardner's statement, "Chairman Hay has formulated a new army plan satisfactory to the Committee on Military Affairs, at least to the Democratic part of that committee.

"On that committee are several men who are well known to be out-and-out pacifists. Any bill which will appeal to those men unanimously is likely to be more satisfactory to William J. Bryan than it is to General Leonard Wood.

"Chairman Hay provides an increase of 35,000 men in the regular army. This is a force sufficient to man a trench seven miles long, or half the length of the island of Manhattan. It is enough for a first-class procession or a fair audience at a great football game.

"Last Summer President Wilson asked for a report from our military experts as to what we need in the way of an army, in order to protect ourselves. The War College made a recommendation for a regular army of 281,000 men all told, including the Philippine scouts and auxiliaries. Secretary Garrison turned the plan down.

WANTS YOUTHS TRAINED.

"All military authorities agree that we shall need 500,000 men to stop the first rush of the enemy in case our fleet is mastered. Our experts devised a plan for a first line of defence composed of men actually in the regular army, and men who had been discharged within the previous six years.

"Secretary Garrison refused to increase the army to 281,000 men, but proposed to increase it to 135,000 men instead. In order to obtain the 500,000 men necessary to stop the rush, he devised a scheme for a Continental Army, under National control.

"Chairman Hay's program gives us 135,000 regulars, but turns down Secretary Garrison's plan for a National militia, with which to supplement it. Instead, we are told that what we really need is a better scheme for consolidating forty-eight little armies when war breaks out.

"Personally, I believe in the long run, the best and cheapest thing to do is to maintain a fairly large standing army handsomely paid, with plenty chance for promotion for enlisted men. A standing army of 100,000 men is none too large.

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous, stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach troubles, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.—Advertisement.

MISS MARGARET WINSLOW.

Notable among the assistants at tomorrow's all-day sale for the Industrial School for Crippled Children at the Copley-Plaza will be Miss Margaret Winslow, member of the Vincent Club, whose engagement to Lieutenant Robert T. Lowell of the United States Navy was announced last August.

Miss Winslow made her debut in 1914, and since then she has played a prominent part in many society affairs. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Winslow of No. 15 Chestnut street and Cohasset. Others who will serve at the sale with her are Mesdames Richard Lawrence, George Minot, C. R. Glidden, George Ware and Samuel Mercelton, 3d, and the Misses Elizabeth Fay, Anna Glidden, Margaret and Hazel Dwight, Mary Lenny, Grace Brooks, Elizabeth Parker, Mildred Stearns, M. C. Buehan, Elizabeth Thomas, Dorothy Thatcher, Helen Bullard, Elise Ames, Christine Rose, Rosamond Porter, Gertrude Hunnewell, Dorothy Witherald and Alice Porter.

The last of Mrs. Hawkesworth's fashionable assemblies will be held tonight at the Copley-Plaza. These dances have been such tremendous successes that this one bringing the series to a close promises to be unusually brilliant.

Although the dances are comparatively informal the gowns worn have rivalled in beauty and elegance those seen at the famous Boston assemblies.

A sale, luncheon, entertainment and tea in aid of the Frances E. Willard Settlement was held today. The affair attracted a large number of friends who are interested in the work, and the rooms at Tremont Temple, used for the occasion, were crowded.

What to Do to Get Fat and Increase Weight

The Real Cause of Thinness

Most people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Most thin people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They get just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay there in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is simply a careful combination of the most active and powerful assimilative and fat-and flesh building elements known to chemical science. It is absolutely harmless, yet has been wonderfully effective and a single tablet taken with each meal often, according to reports, has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by all good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

PELLETIERS' SERVANT RUNS AMUCK

A man house servant, armed with a carving knife, ran amuck in the home of District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, No. 349 Beacon street, today.

The man, whose name is said to be Lovell, attempted to kill his wife, who is also employed at the Pelletier home, and threatened the three brothers of the district attorney, who were in the house at the time, together with their mother, Mrs. William S. Pelletier.

The police were notified, and an officer went to the house, where he disarmed Lovell, who is a negro, and took him to the Back Bay police station. He was later sent to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation.

"The man had been employed at the house two or three weeks," said the district attorney. "I was not there when the trouble took place today. My mother was in the house together with my brothers, Louis, Augustin and Victor.

"The colored man was a general chore man, caring for the furnace, putting out ashes and other work. His wife is employed by my mother also.

"As I understand it the fellow went out of his mind this morning. Someone saw him going up the stairs brandishing a carving knife, apparently intent on murdering his wife. The police were notified, and in the meantime the negro, who was unable to locate his wife, announced his intention of cleaning out the whole house. Before he could start in, however, a police officer arrived and took him away. I understand he was sent to the Psychopathic Hospital.

THICK FOG TIES UP BOSTON HARBOR

A fog of extraordinary density settled over the North Atlantic coast today, and extended far to sea, delaying vessels and interfering with shipping.

Few craft left port, and traffic in the harbor was demoralized. The ferry boats nosed through the fog guided by the bells on their slips, and tug boats proceeded slowly to the accompaniment of continual whistling.

The steamer Ultonia, leased to the France-Canada line, which sailed today for St. Lazaire, France, with a cargo of munitions, was held up by the fog at quarantine. A large force of longshoremen worked all night, on time and a half, loading the Ultonia, so that she might sail today.

The White Star liner Canopic, due today with 1400 passengers, had not been reported and it was thought that the vessel was delayed by the fog.

The revenue cutter Gresham wireless from off Cape Cod that she was standing by the water logged schooner Anne Lord, and as soon as the fog lifted would attempt to tow her to Boston.

Halt Western Shooting Trip of Chelsea Boys

Samuel Kopolowitz, nine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kopolowitz of Cherry street, Chelsea, and Joseph Hagin, colored, son of Mrs Susan Hagin of 29 Cherry street, Chelsea, started for the West to shoot Indians.

They got no further than Memorial Hall square, Dedham, when they were gathered in by the police. They were found to have two boxes of clothing, various eating utensils, two bed sheets, thread and needles and two pepper shakers as equipment.

They said they intended to sleep in a tree and not to return for twenty-one years.

Young Hagin was wheeled across the stage in a performance they called "Some Baby," given by the Knights of Columbus in a hall above the lockup. He made such a hit that a small purse was collected for him.

Shubert-Ertle Draw Put Up Hurricane Bout

JOHNNY (KEWPIE) ERTLE of St. Paul, Minn., the world's bantamweight champion, had a very close call from parting with his title in the 12-round battle with Al Shubert, the lightweight champion of 116-pounders, at New Bedford yesterday afternoon.

Referee Hector McInnes of South Boston rendered a draw decision after the two sturdy little battlers completed their exhilarating 36-minute performance. The verdict proved none too popular, for be it known Shubert was boxing in his home town and fully 95 per cent. of the great crowd that packed Elm Rink as it was never packed before "rooted" for him, and, carried away by his spectacular performance against the champion, thought his aggressiveness won for the native son.

As the battle dissects, McInnes, as clever a judge of a Queensberry bout as the game embraces, scarcely erred when he rendered his dead-heat verdict. He saw it as and even thing, with Ertle landing the cleaner and stiffer punches, but with Shubert showing the superior aggressive fight. This made it a 50-50 standoff for hitting and pace, with the same marks plotted down for aggressiveness and ring-generalship, absolutely-little any—and consequently a draw.

We say Shubert was lacking in that little something-that-makes-for-the-extra-base—in-the-ninth-inning-with-the-bases-jammed-and-two-down-and-a-3-and-2-count-on-the-batter kind of a finish as the unseated Ertle. But it was just that little something that was missing to earn him the award in the eyes of the bulk of the best posted critics at the ringside. Shubert, however, made up for that lack by his particularly sparkling battle, really one of the most consistent he has ever put up that was coming to him on the basis of a clear-cut draw.

It was New England's first championship battle in three years. Nelson defeated Joe Walcott in their clash for the featherweight title and Johnson some eight or ten years ago. The stage was set precisely right in every detail.

First of all the crowd was there and the crowd was a whopper. Elm Rink is said to be the normal capacity as Elm. Promoter Russo claims it is the limit and he ought to. Truth is to tell the structure was completely packed, the galleries, as well as the ringside floor, filled to their utmost capacity, with latecomers, gatecrashers or general admission, crowded solidly ten feet in clear around the building.

SHUBERT STRONG AT OUTSET.

The attending crowd were all strictly according the Hoyle, or rather Queensberry. The ring had there was agreed in principle that Ertle had up a weight forfeit of $500. This was demanded by Mike Morrissey, Ertle's manager, as he doubted Shubert could get down to 116 pounds, the limit of the class, without weakening himself, and were the New Bedford boy to weaken he forfeit wanted to collect real money.

The bulk of hostess, neat 1-pound boxing gloves also were used. Shubert could scarcely reduce to 116. But he was at weights right, though it precious near the mark, as much refrained from having his hands "taped" until after the weighing in festivities were over.

The bandages could scarcely weigh a oz. an ounce or so. Still Shubert didn't even want that little extra weight to be tacked on. As Ex. Ertle making 116 was a snap. "Kewpie" barely ever weighs that much even when not in training.

There were few idle seconds during the twelve rounds. All in all, it was one of the fastest battles ever put up. There were no knockdowns. Neither boy was ever in trouble, though in the midst of the eleventh round Ertle had Shubert in very tight quarters for the greater portion of 20 seconds.

However, just when the New Bedford Bearcat appeared a almost possitive goner, he rallied gamely, tore right into the milling himself and was giving just as good as he was taking when the bell rounded at the end of the round.

Ertle likewise shaded Shubert in the twelfth; in fact, the champion appeared just to be hitting his true stride when the final bell clanged.

Nobody, but two bantamweights could have put up such a corking battle. It was funny, inasmuch as Ertle is an especially hard and free hitter and Shubert also bangs cuffing did most of the forcing.

That some real damage was not done, but there wasn't—scarcely any. Shubert surprised his admirers by using the left jab with far better effect than usual. Heretofore, Al wasn't noted for his jabbing. But yesterday he showed a left that even Mike Glover would scarcely excel.

Making a very gallant and shaken Shubert. In reality, it was only because he got down to 116 that he wasn't as strong that he surely would have been the victor. Al was the aggressor most of the way, but Ertle managed to do more or less missing in spots and the champion countered like the little ring marksman he is.

Then, Johnny did far and away the better infighting. He also mixed more swinging with three times in succession, but then Shubert had always made the other fellow miss, with his nimble, bobbing awkward style.

COUNT BY ROUNDS.

It was a great battle that it is big city Boston did not beat New Bedford in to the New Bedford, for Burke and his partners, not to forget Mike Morrissey, might be computing of for being game enough to go after it and book it.

It cost them a flat guarantee of $1,500, to land Ertle and the champion's end was 25 per cent. split of the gross. The house is claimed to have footed up to almost $7,000, though the AMERICAN'S representatives figured that the actual value was around $5,500, $6,000 possibly, but absolutely no more.

Ertle's manager, as he doubted, Shubert could get down to 116 pounds, the limit of the class, without weakening himself, and were the New Bedford boy to weaken forfeit wanted to collect real money.

The bulk of hostess, neat 1-pound boxing gloves also were used. Shubert could scarcely reduce to 116. But he was at weights right, though it precious near the mark, as much refrained from having his hands "taped" until after the weighing in festivities were over.

Referee McInnes Satisfied Draw Decision Proper

By HECTOR McINNES,
Who Refereed the Ertle-Shubert Championship Battle.

BOTH Johnny Ertle and Al Shubert fought at top speed from first to last; both boys banking strongly; I could not see where either boxer as much as shaded the other, which is why I rendered a draw decision. Ertle did the cleaner punching; in fact, the champion is one of the best scorers I have seen in action in a long time. His blows pop out straight and stinging.

Shubert was the aggressor most of the way. He fooled those of the critics who figured he could not get down to, 116 pounds and be strong. If he had landed as cleanly as the champion he would have secured my verdict and been champion of the world today.

However, there were a lot of Shubert's blows I did not pay any attention to, for the most excellent reason they were not of the kind that a referee should notice. Swinging locks that glance off an opponent's neck or arms are not boxing punches.

I was satisfied the two bantamweights fought a draw. After the bout was announced by Miller, Shubert's manager, told me he thought his boy had run up a slight shade on Ertle and was entitled to the decision, though admitting the shade was very slim. Mc-Nulty, Ertle's manager, also thought Johnny had shaded Shubert. The reputation of neither boy was injured by the draw verdict and they can have it out again.

Canadian style hockey will be the order at the Arena tonight when the crack Aberdeen team from Ottawa meets the Arena Hockey Club seven. The Aberdeens are a combination of stars and its lineup are players who have been seen in the New Edinburghs, Monarchs of Winnipeg, holders of the Allan cup; Ottawa and Laurel University and Hull.

So clever are men like Thebo in the net and Eddie Nagle and "Chuck" O'Connor in the forward line that the professional element have been hard after them the past two years to forsake the amateur ranks.

With the exception of Norman Small, who is recovering from a severe attack of grippe, the Arena men are all in good shape for a bruising game. If Coach Roeque decides to start Archie Mackay in goal it will not weaken the team, judging from the work of the former Oxford-Canadian player in practice.

HARVARD CLUB IS VICTOR

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

THE worst team in the Amateur Hockey League played good hockey at the Arena last night and yet lost.

Hockey Club of New York had absolutely no excuse, aside from being outlucked, for losing to the Harvard Club seven, four goals to 2.

Harvard Club staged its poorest game of the season, and considering its performance against the Arena Hockey Club, and still get away with it.

As has been evidenced on other occasions New York Hockey Club team wasn't present last night with all the maganimity of spirit that one might have. Harvard Club luck and cleanly shot a goal within the first five minutes of play. The puck went within the net, struck Lyon in the possibly a skate, and then bounced outside.

OFFICIAL PUT OUT.

It was an clean a goal as has been made at the Arena this year. Hockey Club players made objection to the calling of it and a few seconds later its manager, or coach, made further objections. The result was the removal of a perfectly competent official, Goal Umpire Carmechan, and the substitution of another who represented New York to a greater extent.

Standing out most conspicuously during the progress of the game was the Hockey Club defensive line in Jaffrey and Britton. Jaffrey, who has built rather chubbily, even more so than "Bub" Phillips or Gus Doty, demonstrated that he is a hockey player of exceptional ability. He skates fast and is an adept stick-handler, as well as an almost sure shot.

Jaffrey's mate, Britton, "Showy" Britton, proved before last night he continued his brilliant performances of the past. Both goes made by the New Yorkers were to his credit and came without assistance. He played a generally fine defensive game and is deserving of ranking with the best of the defence men in the game.

SAGER AT HIS BEST.

Harvard Club returned Sager to the post of goal tend, and as was the case on the night it played the crescents and won from them, Sager demonstrated rare ability in the net. He stopped the New Yorkers' every attempt on the whole, a sparkling exhibition of goal tending.

Pete Sherwell scored Harvard's first goal almost immediately after the game had started. Lyon was then fed Elmer Wanamaker and Phillips worked the puck down to a position from where he could make his shot, which for the second tally. Britton scored for New York a short time later and the first period ended.

During the second half Phillips scored twice more, once with the assistance of Sortwell and the other time with the aid of Claflin and Wanamaker. Britton shot the only other goal of the period.

EVELYN W. FIRST IN SPEEDWAY FEATURE

The matinee of the Metropolitan Driving Club, on the Charles River Speedway, Brighton, embraced twelve trotting and pacing events and the sport on the whole was unusually good. The Class B pace, with three heats, was won by W. J. McDonald's Evelyn W., with Fred Bellamy's Gilbert Direct second and other winners were V. C. H. Wetmore's Safeguard, William Lovell's Molly L., E. B. Locke's Jessie Locke; Frank Lang's Childs; C. B. Holden's Billi G. C. Durham's Ranger; M. McPhee's Monsoon; W. J. Furbush's Nettie Miller; Chauncey Sears' Tommy Ray and R. E. Thompson's Bluejay McGregor and Codara.

ONE WOMAN COVERS FULL 25-MILE HIKE

Donald W. MacArdle won first honors in the annual "Hike Around the Hub" by finishing first in the field of 199 "hikists" in five hours and fifteen minutes. Walter C. Baldwin was second in five hours and twenty minutes, and J. E. Helmuth third in five hours and thirty-two minutes. The course took in twenty-five miles including Boston, starting from Boston Y. M. C. A. Of the nine women starting, only one finished.

WELLESLEY TEAM DROPS CLOSE GAME

Washington, Feb. 23.—The Wellesley, Mass., High basketball five weakened in the closing stages of its game with Worcester High and was defeated, 27-15. Senator Weeks of Massachusetts tossed up the ball, Wellesley led at the start and the two teams had it out in hammer and tongs fashion throughout. The two teams have practically arranged to meet in a three-game series in Wellesley.

THE RABBITS' COLUMN

By Walter J. Marrinville
SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

I was glad of the opportunity to once again meet the members of the Winter League at the banquet. These boys are "some" rooters' fans, and are the best boosters in the world. I have been to several of these gatherings since I joined the Braves, and have learned much of benefit to me. Ball players like to get in touch with those who support the game. This intimacy is very helpful.

* * *

President Haughton's talk gave me a line at close range. I believe we are the best equipped club in either of the major leagues. No one disputes Judge Fuller that Manager Stallings knows the game, and before long the fans of the country will realize that President Haughton is more familiar with the inner workings of organized baseball than many experts. He is not what I would call a fan or an enthusiast. He is, rather, one who has made baseball a study, and whose ideas will be of assistance.

* * *

When he gets down at the camp at Miami and starts his workouts with his mates, he will see what Stallings senses what is known as "rich red blood." Some may think that getting close to him may destroy dignity, but wait and watch. It will be worth while.

* * *

President Haughton realizes that the office carries its troubles and hard work. He is familiar with the first, and work is his middle name.

* * *

It looks as if Coach Mitchell had found a good man for catcher in Dick Pyle. Now, if Mahan can come through he will add much strength to the Crimson squad.

* * *

Mike Mowrey's appearance with the Brooklyn team means a little more strength for the "Robbins." That club is one we will have to reckon with in a battle for the flag.

FRED TONEY SIGNS HIS RED CONTRACT

Cincinnati, Feb. 23.—Fred Toney, last season's star pitcher of the Reds, today signed a 1916 contract. Toney will get an increase in salary, for which he was holding out, but the figures were not made public.

SIDELIGHTS ON TITLE BATTLE

THE betting hovered close to the even money notch up to the arrival of the Boston contingent. They wanted Ertle and in a jiffy the odds came down to 10-6 was being refused at post time.

THERE were fully 400 Boston sports on hand. George Freeman, Mike Glover's manager; Al Morton and his manager-to-be, Lightweight Champion Brown; Eddie Mack, manager of Terry Brooks, and other speedy steppers and "Sonny" Bennett, the big gun from the B. M. A. A., were among the gentry making the trip.

JIM CRILLEY, the Lawrence sporting man, manager and matchmaker of the Unity C. C. etc., etc., chaperoned a small, but select party from big city.

PROVIDENCE sports turned out en masse. Phil Bonch o' that city was stakeholder.

JOHNNY MILLER said he would have Shubert right and made good. Al made 130 pounds easy a couple, had all his strength and really fought the best figh. of his career.

WHEN it came time for the weighing-in festivities Shubert hopped on and off the scales entirely too quickly to suit McNulty, Ertle's manager. Al was asked to weigh again, and obliged. He was under all right, not much, but plenty to save his $500 forfeit.

THE beam didn't as much as wabble when Ertle climbed on. One-sixteen is a snap for "Kewpie."

THE scale of prices was $1, $2 and $3. The house was generally estimated at between $5,500 and $6,000.

JOHNNY MILLER and Hugh Devlin seconded Shubert. McNulty, Johnny Mudice of Charlestown; "Kid" Wolfe of Cleveland and "Pop Nose" of Providence were behind Ertle.

"MICKEY" BROWN, the Malden bantamweight, was introduced and issued a defi to the winner. Brown held his own with Shubert at the Atlas, but lost to Al at New Bedford in their return scrap.

BOTH boxers minded Referee McInnes throughout and Hector had very little trouble making them break.

NATURALLY the crowd was for Shubert, as Al was getting 95 per cent. of the house. Then fully 95 per cent. of the fans on deck were New Englanders.

SHUBERT was there every inch of the way, though appearing to be in very tight quarters in the eleventh round.

ERTLE landed the cleaner blows. Most of the real wing ones prevent thought to be graded close enough to get the decision. Still, Shubert really tagged behind. Al was there right there and, on the whole, well won his draw with the champion.

MEREDITH STRIKES TARTAR

Binga Dismond, Dusky Chicago U. Runner, Hero of Quarter-Mile at Brooklyn Games.

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Binga Dismond of Chicago University, a brother in color to Howard P. Drew, won the famous Suburban quarter at the eighth annual indoor meet of the Knights of St. Anthony at the Forty-seventh Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, last night.

He won his race as decisively as Howard Drew wins his sprints.

Ted Meredith, the University of Penn star, was in second place, seven yards behind the winner. "Billy" Moore, captain of the Princeton track team, was third, a foot behind Meredith. The time was 51 seconds. The record for the event, 49 2-5 seconds, is held by Meredith.

Dismond's victory was a big surprise. He was the literal and figurative "dark horse" of the race. Meredith, before the event, had been installed as the favorite. The experts said that Dismond, a well built and husky negro, had no chance.

Five of the fastest runners in the country started. Jules Caldwell, who early in the day established a new indoor mark for the 1,000-yard run in Boston, was unable to compete. Besides Dismond, Meredith and Moore, there were Tom Halsh, Boston A. A., and Tommy Lennon, University of Pennsylvania.

Lennon flashed into the lead at the start and maintained a lead of five yards up to the 220-yard mark. His time for the first half of the distance was 25 seconds and his time for the third half was about the same.

Dismond, running with a long, powerful stride, moved up on Moore and Meredith, who had overtaken Lennon at the 250-yard mark, and broke out into a wild sprint. He caught up with the leaders on the home stretch, forged out into a wonderful sprint and won, slowing up.

TIME PRIZE WON BY MASTER HENNEGAN

Jimmy Hennegan, Dorchester Club, the New England champion, won the time prize in the St. Joseph's T. A. S. cross-country run for negotiating the course, ankle-deep in slush and mud, in fifty-six minutes and forty-eight seconds. David Caldwell and Benjamin Hesford, both members of the New Bedford Harriers, finished first and second, respectively. Fred W. Faller, Arthur V. Roth and Hennegan followed Atwood and Hesford across the line.

WESLEYAN MERMEN DISPOSE OF BROWN

MIDDLETOWN, Ct., Feb. 23.—Wesleyan's swimming team found the Brown squad easy in their dual meet here and won by the decisive score of 45½-7½. Brown showed up minus Capt. Hull, its star merman. Capt. Turner of Wesleyan won the forty and 100-yard races and was a member of the winning relay team.

Willard Is O. K. and Ready to Start East

By International News Service.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Jess Willard is almost himself again. He was downtown yesterday with Manager Tom Jones, making the rounds and feeling better than he has in two weeks. He had almost shaken off the bad cold that racked him and kept him out of the Chicago A. C. gymnasium. Jess expects to be rid of it entirely in a few days.

Willard feels so good that he and Jones will leave for New York today or tomorrow night.

"I guess our departure will put a stop to the stories being circulated that Willard does not intend to fight Frank Moran in New York March 25," said Jones today. "Jess has really been sick and in no shape to fight. Now he is well and by the time we get settled in our New York quarters will be ready to don the gloves and renew the grind.

"Don't forget that when we return to Chicago we will fight Moran. Champion and Moran won't look as good to the Eastern critics as he does at this stage of the game."

C. C. PELL IS WELL BEATEN

Stanley G. Mortimer Vanquishes Fellow Tuxedo Member in Finals for Racquets Title.

IN three straight sets, Stanley G. Mortimer of the Tuxedo Tennis and Racquet Club won the final match in the national championship from his clubmate and titleholder, Clarence C. Pell, at the Tennis and Racquet Club. Mortimer's championship victory was without question the greatest upset of the tournament, for it had been confidently expected that Pell would retain his laurels.

Unquestionably the match was the most brilliant of the tournament, and that Mortimer won in straight sets, 15-12, 15-2, 15-12, or 45 points to 26, showed clearly that he must be ranked with the leading racquet players of the country. Mortimer has always been possessed of the reputation of being a hard-hitting player, and in his strokes there was more speed and steam than any other man in the country has shown, at least, in this city.

In the opinion of those who viewed the match, it was not only Mortimer's strength and the telling power of his strokes that won him the championship honors. His timely change of pace and all-around craftiness aided not a little bit toward the win. Whereas in the doubles championships of a month ago, when Pell was his partner, he relied almost wholly on his speed and strength to win.

Yesterday such was not the case. He mixed up his strokes both on service and in the rallies, and coupled with them footwork and court covering ability that was dazzling Pell's service was quite up to his game but Mortimer's was a trifle better. His placing was deadly accurate and in fact his entire game was unusually well rounded and balanced.

BUTLER GETS KAYO OVER IN ELEVENTH

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly, Cheap and Easily Made

If you have a bad cough or chest cold which hangs on and refuses to yield to any remedy you have tried, you should try this. Get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) and mix it with a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Take a teaspoonful every hour or two. A 24 hours use of this will be conquered or very near relief. Children like it. Keep it handy for whooping cough. It is excellent in this way.

The above mixture is a full pint, a family size, and gives you as much cough syrup as you could buy ready-made for three times the money. It is slightly laxative, and is a splendid remedy for throat troubles, hoarseness, bronchitis, etc.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol which is healing to the membranes. You may be disappointment ask your druggist for Pinex, or send direct to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

Neponset Lady Has but One Answer to Query as to the Cause of Improvement.

Miss Cahill McCook

Miss Cahill McCook who resides at Neponset, Illinois, R. F. D. No. 1, writes us as follows:

"For the past two years I have suffered with indigestion and a bad liver. I had no appetite, dizzy spells, could not sleep at night, had pimples come on my face and I could hardly see out of my eyes and I could hardly stand erect. I could eat the very smallest meal without suffering intense pain. At times I would have to retire to bed and I could get no relief. I tried different doctors and different medicines but got no relief. I was induced to try Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and I am pleased to say that after taking one bottle I felt much better and after taking two bottles I felt like a new woman. I have gained in weight, can eat anything I want without suffering any pain, have a splendid appetite, sleep well, have no more dizzy spells, my complexion is clear and my liver is working fine. I have taken in all five bottles and feel like a new woman. I have also induced several friends to use Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and they are receiving the same good results that I have. I feel that I owe my health entirely to the use of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers."

The Mayr Medicine Co. of the Original Mayr's Store, Chicago, Ill., are meeting the demand for this remedy by establishing agencies in every city and town in the United States. Their address is 111 W. Monroe St., Chicago, Ill. Their advertisement appears in this paper. Write them for a free booklet telling all about the remedy.—Advertisement.

Publicity Is Slowly Rising Sun Dissipating Secrecy in Financial Affairs and Consequent Public Distrust—Demand for Quarterly Corporation Reports

FORBES URGES BIG BUSINESS MEN TO REMOVE SECRECY

By B. C. FORBES.

New York, Feb. 23—It is deplorable that so few financiers and corporations really understand the public.

Acts that are accepted as customary, and, therefore, right, from the viewpoint of capitalists, may strike the public as wrong beyond question.

And anything the public as a whole are convinced is wrong is apt to be changed more or less ruthlessly sooner or later.

Secrecy is the most prolific breeder of misunderstanding and distrust.

Publicity is as a slowly rising sun. But so many men still refuse to see or realize this.

Even many who have nothing disreputable to hide, oppose letting in the light.

* * *

On no subject do I receive more letters, year in, year out, than the lack of thorough publicity in conducting operations.

Let me give you a typical letter:

Sir—I appeal to you to start a serious movement to compel corporations to publish quarterly reports of their affairs, or, better still, monthly reports.

Only through such publicity will stockholders have a fair chance in the stock market, and that is not now, when those in power take advantage of what they know to be grasping on the side by manipulation of the stocks to high figures on "take" transactions.

There is no more difference between the rational and hits the mark more nearly than the plans and methods of corporate officials or clerk who see no knowledge to steal money from stockholders.

If corporations do not read the handwriting on the wall and do something to head them off, they will be overwhelmed by the storm which persists a revolution magnitude upon their eyes. Very truly yours, ATLETTER W. RICE.

Why shouldn't industrial companies owned by the public be compelled to issue reports at least every quarter? The largest railroads furnish them, and issue illuminating trade figures every month and a financial report every three months. Several other industrial enterprises now supply quarterly statements. In every case the question has been put before stockholders fairly and squarely—the vote has been in favor of publication.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular at noon, but the tone in New York was better than it was during the first hour. The market was unusually quiet all the morning, and during the first hour transactions totalled but little more than 50,000 shares. Trading was almost wholly professional. One reason for dullness was uncertainty. Investors and speculators mind the international situation had a more serious look than at any time within a year. Traders were averse to committing themselves to either the long or the short side.

The price range ruled narrow throughout the forenoon. Industrial alcohol was weak until near noon, when it rallied and showed a gain. Steels ruled irregular. Coppers continued weak. Rails remained fairly strong, while coppers were a weak feature. Motors were irregular, but chiefly lower. Steel issues were the strongest group. New Haven opened to sell, owing to the break on its line yesterday, but later partly recovered. At the opening a few stocks advanced a little, but the list as a whole averaged lower. The improvement did not continue until late in the morning.

GAINS AN LOSES.

There was not much change in the market at midday. It was inert and neglected. It is understood that numerous speculative interests are holding entirely aloof and that sentiment in high financial circles is against any extended movement in stocks at present.

Gains at 12 o'clock included American Can 1, American Locomotive 2, Maxwell ½, U. S. Steel ⅜, Westinghouse ⅜, American Zinc ¼, Baldwin 1, Reading ¼, Canadian Pacific ½ and Industrial Alcohol ⅜.

Among declines were American Smelting ½, Anaconda ⅜, Chino ⅜, Inspiration ¼, Utah Copper ⅜, Mexican Petroleum ½, Pennsylvania ⅜, Northern Pacific ¼, New Haven ¼, Marine preferred certificates ⅝ and Pittsburgh Coal 2⅝.

DULL AND IRREGULAR HERE.

Opening dull, the Boston market did not show strength at the start. It became irregular when New York developed further weakness and stayed so during the morning. The price tendency of most issues was downward. New Haven at its lowest was off 1¼ points from its closing price. Atlantic Gulf issues were strong and active by comparison with most stocks. Zincs were higher, Copper issues were off in sales and losses. There was nothing about local trading to attract attention.

Declines at 12 o'clock included Granby 1⅝, Greene-Cananea 1⅜, Quincy ¾, Utah Copper ⅝, Shattuck-Arizona ⅝, Allouez 1½, and Boston & Maine ¾. Gains included American Zinc ½, Butte and Superior ½, Osceola ¼, Atlantic Gulf common ½, and preferred 1¼.

HIGH OCEAN FREIGHTS.

If the Germans carry out threats to sink all armed merchant ships their submarines can operate, ocean transportation will be in a more serious plight than ever, and it has been very serious that ocean freight rates have increased from 1,000 to 1,200 per cent. during the war.

Scarcity of ships accounts for the Order in Council by which the British government will direct what ships for flying the Union Jag shall be laden with, it can also prevent any of these ships from landing what is on its contraband list. The order was adopted to make sure that allies be promptly what they need most.

As Great Britain controls almost all ocean tonnage now afloat this order affects the business of American exporters. They must ship to British craft or none. Never were so many cargoes waiting for vessels to take them overseas. Never was the vast store of American products in it is the British government which shall say what shall be moved.

AMERICAN SHIPS NEEDED.

This shows why the United States should have a merchant marine commensurate with its size and wealth area and population. When the war between Northern and Southern States began the American marine was second only to the British in tonnage, and it was overwhelmingly the largest. During the war Confederate privateers, like the Alabama and Shenandoah, which were built in England, practically drove the American flag off the high seas.

After the war building of Western railways absorbed most of the surplus capital. This country did not went into rails instead of ocean bottoms. Another deterrent to shipping recovery was a high cost of operating American ships. In addition, the British government was always ready to grant subsidies, something which the United States would not consent to.

If American shipping had received as much help in Washington as the Union Pacific and some other transcontinental railways did, there would not be such a dearth of American ships. The East consented to government aid for railroads but the West would never consent to government aid for ships.

VIEWED DIFFERENTLY NOW.

Washington views shipping in a different light now. President Wilson is willing to have government money appropriated for a merchant marine, and an effort is being made by business interests to induce War and Navy Departments to quit military transports, colliers, supply and other idle ships to private owners.

With Incredible Folly, We Build Foreign Navies and Let Ours Wait

THE American navy has no submarines that can go to sea and fight.

Neither has the American navy any battle cruisers of the modern type.

Neither has the American navy any dirigible aircraft.

Neither is the American navy supplied with aeroplanes and trained fliers.

The President and Secretary Daniels and House Leader Kitchin insist that the navy is ready and fit to defend our coasts.

That is absolutely not so.

The officers of the American navy know as well as they know they are alive that our brave sailor men would have no chance at all to beat off an attack by a British fleet or by a German fleet.

They would simply GO OUT TO BE MARTYRED, and they know it.

A navy without submarines, without battle cruisers, without air-scouts, is as well equipped for battle as a man with one leg and no arms is equipped to run a foot race—and no better.

Fourteen months ago the Congress authorized the construction of the Schley, a seagoing submarine of great range and power. The Schley was to be the first of a fleet of these indispensable submersible craft.

Secretary Daniels let the contract for the Schley, as ordered by Congress, and in these fourteen months not a stroke of work has been done on the vessel.

The construction of the Schley has not even begun, because American plants let American submarines wait while they build submarines for foreign navies—submarines, too, which would be used to destroy American warships if we should become involved in conflict over the constant violations of our neutral rights on the seas.

The Secretary of the Navy deliberately permits American contractors to put our own government's naval construction contracts in storage while foreign navies are supplied with submarines, with aircraft and with huge supplies of projectiles and explosives.

We think that a Secretary of the Navy who permits American naval construction and equipment to stand still while American constructors supply foreign navies with ships and weapons that may actually be used to destroy our own fleets is a fit subject for sudden removal.

This is a time for able men to be at the head of the great departments upon whose strenuous preparation may at any time hang the tremendous issue of victory or defeat in some sudden war, launched like a thunderbolt at our coasts and coming from either the east or the west, OR FROM BOTH IN ONE COMBINED ASSAULT.

If we cannot even get the construction of one submarine begun in fourteen months under the present administration, then, in the great name of common sense, let us throw out the present administration and elect a President and a congressional majority which WILL put the navy in condition to fight on equal terms with any foe.

And when did American seamen ever ask anything else than an even chance of ships and men to go out cheerfully and confidently to fight and win?

Let the Government Commandeer Some Freight Cars

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company.

IT is rather tiresome to read that merchants are distressed because of "the embargo on railroad freights."

Railroads are so busy carrying war supplies, killing machines for Europe, that they cannot bother with the freight of the little people who run stores and live in houses in the suburbs.

We are enjoying the "blessings of war" in a rather one-sided way.

Why not learn something from the warring countries, and "commandeer" a sufficient number of freight cars for the use of the small American citizen?

The government of the United States, or the different States, ought to say to the railroads, "We have granted you rights of way in order to serve the people OF AMERICA. We don't propose to have these rights of way used exclusively to serve the makers of murder machines in America and the fighters in Europe.

"Therefore, we notify you that we will take first what freight cars and other cars are needed by our citizens for THEIR service—and for a change you can put your embargo on cannons and guns instead of putting it on Spring chickens and potatoes."

The War and the Birth Rate

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

PART TWO

SO far as the war coming to an end by exhaustion of men and cannon-fodder the prospect is painfully remote, and as far as the raw human material is concerned the nations of Europe could continue their insane slaughter for at least six or eight years without running short of men.

This may sound incredible, but as a further straw, Russia calls to her colors every year 1,250,000 young men of fighting age, almost enough to make good the annual losses of all the nations involved so far.

Just two words explain the paradox of this huge total, but small relative fatality—both individual and national—one is conscription, turning every young healthy male into a soldier and putting millions in the field where only tens of thousands ever marched before; the other is mudicine.

In the present war only between 2 and 3 per cent. of the wounded die. In the Russo-Japanese war about 5 per cent. died, in the Spanish-American about 7½ per cent., in the Franco-Prussian 15, in the Crimean 25, and in the Napoleonic wars over 50 per cent. of the wounded died, not of their wounds, but of septic fever, hospital gangrene and lockjaw.

But the biggest reduction from deadliness has come from medicine and not from surgery, unexpected as this may seem.

Of those who fell in the Civil War, for every one who lost his life in battle five died of disease.

In the present horror the proportions have been a little more than reversed—for every one that dies of disease seven die in battle.

The war game has been made just plain, straight killing, and little else.

If you are not killed outright, and the chances of that are little greater than they were before, the chances are thirty to one in favor to your recovery.

From four-fifths to nine-tenths of the real risks of war were not bullets but bugs, and we have pretty nearly wiped the latter off the earth, so far as the soldier is concerned. When we do as well by our civil populations in times of peace the health millennium will come.

Such increase in fatality, amounting to perhaps 35 to 50 per cent., as appears upon the surface of the returns of the present war, is probably chiefly due to another factor which has nothing whatever to do with increased killing power, and that is, the frequency of the battles and the practical incessantness of the fighting.

This depends upon the enormous improvement in the commissariat and supply department, due to modern methods and facilities, such as railroads, permanent and temporary; motor cars, telegraph and telephones.

This makes possible a constant and unfailing supply of food, equipments, clothing and ammunition; a prompt clearing out and carrying away of the wounded to base and rear hospitals and of immediate substitution in their place of fresh cannon-food.

Moreover, the most important and deadly part of the fighting has been conducted for the last thirteen months in one place, a long and narrow strip, only about fifteen miles wide, in a highly civilized country, with abundance of perfect roads and with each side having a dozen first-class railroads connecting by very short haul with its base of supplies, so that ammunition and reinforcements can be poured in and empty shells and waste human material hauled out as promptly and regularly as if supplying a factory with raw material and bringing back the finished product.

There have been actually more battles fought in the seventeen months of this war than ever were fought in any seventeen years before.

The joking remark of an English officer that their army had been fighting "five Waterloos a week" was not so far from the truth as it might sound.

Taking all these things into consideration, modern warfare, like ancient warfare, is still about the stupidest, clumsiest, most inefficient way of killing men that has ever yet been invented, and in spite of the enormous expense the War God has to work harder today to kill one man that he ever did in all history before.

Keeping the Wells of Thought Pure

Do Not Be a Prude, Says Ella Wheeler Wilcox, but Avoid Discussion of Topics Which Do Not Elevate and Inspire

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

WHEN women of secretly questionable lives, who yet retain public respect, meet in friendly converse they are exceedingly careful to steer away from any discussion of vice. They prefer to talk of the new minister, and their private charities, and the opera, and the latest fashion.

Herein they are more wise than their moral and pure-hearted sisters sometimes are.

To the really innocent possessed of any temperament or imagination there is a certain fascination in learning a little about the doings of vice. It is the same sort of quality of mind which makes the timid child want to hear about Jack the Giant-Killer, Little Red Riding Hood, and Bluebeard.

The child is all affection and tenderness, yet he is stirred with a creepy sensation of delight and horror intermingled when he hears these tales of slaughter (stories, by the way, which no child should ever be permitted to hear during his nursery days).

It is quite in the same way that good girls and pure-hearted women are led through their curiosity to listen to stories of human depravity and vice, and to repeat to one another the tales of wickedness which they have read or heard.

Had they taken part in any of these phases of life they would not want to talk about them unless they had become utterly depraved and indifferent to public opinion; yet even with the excuse of the curiosity which often accompanies virtue and inexperience, it is a step in the wrong direction when a good woman with noble and worthy aims allows herself to talk about unwholesome subjects.

It is impossible for a woman of intelligence to live in the world a score of years and not know that vice and depravity exist. It is necessary that she should know it if she intends to be a factor for good, and not a mere lay figure. Innocence does not need to be ignorant, nor does the moral-minded woman need to assume an offended or insulted air if immorality is mentioned in her presence.

We can increase and intensify anything we think about persistently. If we permit our minds to dwell upon the evil in the world, even to regret and bemoan it, we increase the power of evil, besides coming closer in touch with it ourselves. Let evil alone—do not think of it or talk of it, and it will die of neglect. If no one thought or talked of sin, it would soon cease to exist.

As our country grows older we hear much of the "abnormal" and the "degenerate." Almost every day one may hear those words used carelessly by sweet women.

Stop talking about them; stop thinking or wondering about them. If you chance to know such types, steer clear of them, giving them thoughts of healing and illumination as you pass, commanding them to be clean, and then go upon your way and forget them.

Do not defile your mind or that of another by conversation about them. If a subject of this kind is introduced in your presence you do not need to appear shocked or assume an "I-am-holier-than-thou" air, for, remember, it is not the worst people who speak of such things to one another? But you can get away from the unpleasant topic as quickly as possible, and let the fresh air of some wholesome thought blow through your mind.

Don't be a prude; don't affect false modesty; don't claim an ignorance of evil, but rise up and over it to purer realms of thought, and help yourself and humanity by thinking and talking of the good things which exist all about us—beautiful loves, pure friendship, noble charities, lovely unselfishness, sincere motives.

Look for them, and you will find them.

More Truth Than Poetry

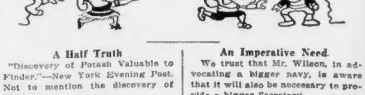
By James J. Montague

The New Opera

WE have witnessed many operatic battles
Which awoke in us no sentiment save scorn,
For the fighting lacked all savor; there was no true rough house flavor,
And the only punch was in the fluegel horn.
When you watch the bassos threatening the tenors
You are prone to think, "Well, this is something like."
But your glowing hopes diminish when you find they never finish,
And an attitude is all they ever strike.

BUT a better day is dawning for the opera
Now Farrar has learned to register real rage.
And, emitting notes in bunches, while she lands some strong arm punches,
Runs the terrified Caruso off the stage.
Even Wagner's raring tearing compositions
Never stirred his stars to simulate a fight.
They pulled off their quarrels sedately; but we do things better lately,
And the opera plus the movies is all right!

LET 'em all go serve a season with the pictures,
Let 'em learn to grab each other by the throats.
And to punctuate the singing with brisk, clever right arm swinging,
Interspersing jabs and wallops with the notes.
For belligerence that's quavered in cadenzas
We are willing to admit we do not care.
But when they cut out the bluffing and begin good honest roughing,
If we've got the price about us, we'll be there!



A Half Truth

"Discovery of Potash Valuable to Finder."—New York Evening Post. Not to mention the discovery of Perlmutter.

Hopeful

Mr. Root ought to be glad of Barnes' support. It got Taft Utah and Vermont in 1912.

An Imperative Need

We trust that Mr. Wilson, in advocating a bigger navy, is aware that it will also be necessary to provide a bigger Secretary.

A Rule of Life

Chickens and curses come home to roost, but they have nothing on letters.
